"It Belongs"

A distinguished international clientele recognizes the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel as "Select," but it is much more than that . . . it is what the cosmopolitan guest indicates with the phrase "it belongs."

"A Tradition"

Those who appreciate the finer things in life have rewarded the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel with a rare distinction as the leader; "the finest of the great British hotels of the Caribbean." To retain so complimentary a distinction, year after year, makes it a tradition.

Nassau and the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel provide sports of every kind, smart social life, thoroughly modern facilities in a setting of unforgettable loveliness.

THERE must be something about a lassie on a golfing green that has an especial and a universal appeal, for come winter time in the Southlands and the tournament schedules are published, no matches are looked forward to with quite so keen an interest as the women's golfing championships that dot the sports calendars of well nigh all the leading resort centers.

One of the most popular tournaments played during the Florida season was the Miami Biltmore Women's Golf Championship. The championship was played for the Grace Doherty Cup, named for the widow of the late Henry L. Doherty, who herself has been actively interested in the promotion of women's sports and activities not only at the Miami Biltmore but at the other resorts in which her husband was interested.

Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Pyne, who are passing the season at the Giralda Tower of the Miami Biltmore, were joint hosts to a party of forty on Saturday evening, later taking their guests to the opening night of the Pool Show of the hotel, which features many numbers of the famous Aquacade of last summer World of Tomorrow.

Others who entertained included, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Patton, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Homan, Mr. and Mrs. Milton M. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marsh Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McKnight, Mrs. Ellery Hodges, Mrs. George Nettleton, Mrs. B. C. Newbury, and Mr. Frederick Johnson.

Distinguished visitors who arrived last week for an extended visit at the Miami Biltmore, where they are the guests of Mr. George MacDonald, are George Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, and Monseigneur Splaine and Monseigneur Minihan.

Much interest was shown in the recently completed Men's Amateur Golf Tournament here on the links of the Miami Biltmore Country Club, which Mr. Gus Novatny, of Chicago won, 4 and 3. An interesting note is that Dr. Leslie J. Barnette, of Coral Gables, runnerup, has finished in that position for three consecutive years.

Glimpsing the Pancoast . . . as rounds of welcome reverberate in greeting annual visitors returning for seasonal sojourns . . . Mrs. Alexis Tarassoff arrived this week with her daughter, Mrs. Speaks, wife of Colonel Charles E. Speaks of Springfield, Mass. The gallant Colonel will be here soon. . . . Mr. and Mrs. John W. Platten whisked in, glad to be back, and glad to be away from the snow and ice of Manhattan and they too received a gladsome welcome from the Pancoastites . . . Mr. and Mrs. Alvin S. Brush, Garden City, L. I., N. Y., are here, their arrival being somewhat later than usual due to the fact their debutante daughter, Miss Barbara Bush, now a student in a far West school, wished to have her Christmas holidays in Manhattan . . . and along come the delightful Mr. and Mrs. William B. Bachof of Montclair, N. J. . . . and speaking of Montclair reminds us of another visitor from there, Mr. David G. Holmes, who has had so many wins in shuffleboard in the Pancoast cabana courts that he has a good chance of being declared champion of this colony . . . although he had a close shave for honors the other day when he took on Mr. Ashley Burner of Plainfield, N. J. . . . but Mr. Burner takes the spotlight from Mr. Holmes, when he and Mrs. Burner "go to town" on the dance floor in the hotel . . . and the Burners had to look to their terpsichorian laurels at the dinner dance on Tuesday night, when Mr. and Mrs. S. De Witt Clough of Glencoe, Mr. and Mrs.

Charles J. Lewin of Fairhaven, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Boyd Altreuter, New York, tripped the light fantastic. . . . and over there in the annual just-arrived southern contingent are Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Gossett of Charlotte, N. C., . . . and off the record, he likes candy, as well as the "ultra violets" they gather in the tropic sunshine on the hotel beach . . . while Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hummel, the in-again, out-again, back-again, game-fishing folk of Hopewell, Va., make another visit at the Pancoast before going to the Hillsborough Club . . . and in the summer they will confine their activities to the Cavalier Beach Club in Virginia Beach, as will the Misses Mary Louise Benton and Emilie Bruce of Norfolk, now Pancoasting; and by the way Miss Benton appeared the other night at dinner in an attractive fisherman red crepe gown with waistlines decorated with gold embroidery, while Miss Bruce was attired in a white silk jersey dinner gown with red jersey bolero ornamented by a white wool floral design, with neckline of gown finished with clips of simulated emeralds and diamonds . . . chic to say the least . . . and speaking of fashions . . . black is a dominant tone in evening wear at this hotel this season, Mrs. Vincent Riggio of Chappequa, N. Y., appearing the other night in a black satin gown en train, Mrs. Alma L. Roe, New York, was regal in a black velvet gown with pearls, and Mrs. Charles S. Bromley, Philadelphia, had a black and white combination, reflecting her racing ribbons incidentally, with black chantilly lace yoke and diminutive puffed sleeves caught by black velvet bands topping a white crepe gown, having a silk en train, intermittently accordion pleated, fitting closely at the waist line, and the white blouse featured with black velvet bow knots . . . Just in the way of contrast, Mrs. Glen T. Hoffman, Chicago, a Pancoaster for many seasons, recently wore a beautiful bronzelace gown, while Mrs. Charles Speaks, Springfield, was lovely in a delicate pink tulle gown with opalescent sequins ornamenting the wide bodice . . . Other colorful personalities recently joining the winter colony at the Pancoast include Mr. Leon G. Turrou, former ace member of the FBI, who was the guest speaker at the Tuesday night meeting of the Committee of 100 in Miami Beach, is relaxing in the Tropic sunshine for several days at the Pancoast. . . . Since his resignation from the FBI, Mr. Turrou has authored books and stories of international import, the motion picture, "Nazi Spy," being based on his first book. The M.G.M. has bought movie rights to his newest book, "As My Shadow Falls," and Mr. Turrou will undoubtedly direct the production of this picture, as he did the "Nazi Spy." . . . Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Camp, Franklin, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Grimes Johnson Nicholson, Asheville, Mr. and Mrs. Maxey Jarman, Nashville, who have been Palm Beaching, and Mr. and Mrs. L. William Driscoll, Charlotte, Hialeah horse race enthusiasts, have joined the southern colony at the Pancoast. . . . and speaking of sports, did you know that the honeymooning Dr. and Mrs. Francis Jervois Callanan of Boston took time out from the Pancoast the other day to do some trolling from the Cruiser Betty M at Key Largo, the net result being a mess of jack, with the bride top-boating a 36-pound amber jack, while Dr. Callahan reeled in a 16 1-2-pound cravelle jack, said to be the biggest of this species caught in Florida waters this winter.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles A. Elsberg, New York, who are wintering at The Breakers in Palm Beach, are at the Pancoast at present. He is a member of the faculty in Columbia University.

On Sunny Palm Beach Sands

THE exotic enchantment of the fabulous gypsy camps with their 'White Nights' of extravagant entertainment was the theme for the third in the series of Whitehall extravaganzas on Saturday evening, February 3.

Prince Mikail Alexandrovitch Goundoroff sponsoring the affair in the lovely Jardin Royal, which simulated the 'Tente des Tziganes' presenting in the gypsies' tent the internationally distinguished artists, former favorites of the Czarist Courts, Cornelius Codolban, violin virtuoso extraordinaire; Olga Vadina, chanteuse Caucassienne; also Marissa, danseuse, and George Shelley, chanteur.

Gypsy music echoed across Lake Worth, capturing the langour of the 'Scheherezade' and other Paris and London boites, colored by a group of gay Turkish and Roumanian street songs and lilting shepherd songs and dances.

With the spirit and fire of the Romanys, M. Nicholas Bjorn and Mlle. Jeane Farries cavort in the 'Valse Champanskavo,' assisted by the Arthur Murray group. Val Olman with all the verve of the wandering gypsy played little-known Tzigane melodies.

Several distinguished visitors have arrived at Whitehall during the past week. Robert Wood Johnson, internationally-known yachtsman, had his new yacht 'Good News' in the yacht basin. He is hoping to win for the third time the Bahamas Government Cup in the Miami-to-Nassau yacht race this month. Mr. Johnson will return for another visit at Whitehall later in the season.

Mrs. Frank Knox of Lake Forest, Ill., is at Whitehall for a month. Mr. and Mrs. S. Peavey Wells of New York are passing several days there before returning to Nassau, where they have taken a cottage. They will return for a visit later in the season.

In a lively young group at the hotel are the Misses Marion and Helen West and Miss Dorothy A. Dodge, all of New Rochelle. Dr. and Mrs. J. E. West are with them.

Antoine, famous French creator of hair styles, is a guest at Whitehall. Gold-dust sprinkled in the hair for evening and phosphorescent lacquer that glows in 'black-out nights' are Antoine ideas.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Downey of Tenafly, N. J., returned recently to Whitehall for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Darby of Scarsdale, who entertained recently for Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hager of Forest Hills, L. I., are here for the season.

Mrs. Joyce Kittinger of 400 Park Avenue, New York, who entertained Saturday is at Whitehall with her son, Paul Kittinger, for the season. He is entered in the Palm Beach School.

The Seaglade, this season, has retained its popularity as one of the attractive and comfortable residential hotels in the resort. Its Patio and Terrace restaurant service is considered among the best and provides an excellent atmosphere and delightful setting for entertaining at luncheon, tea and dinner parties.

Among the many persons who have entertained at the Seaglade, following its delightful meals, with theatre or card parties, are, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Barbey of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Joyce, Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. W. S. Price, Mrs. Charles Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Beckwith of Toledo, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Storer, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bushey, Mr. H. E. Bishop and Mr. and Mrs. William G. Havill, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Heatherson, Mr. W. R. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rolin, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Essen.

The Breakers, a center of resort social activity, has opened its doors during the past few weeks to scores of returning annual guests from all parts of the country. Continuing in great popularity are the afternoon tea dances which are the occasions for much entertaining. Evening dances share honors with the interesting pre-luncheon social hours, while Sunday evening concerts in the Central Loggia by Walter Miller's orchestra attract large gatherings each week.

Mrs. Virginia Conron was hostess at tea recently to Mrs. M. B. Kaesche, Mrs. Franklin Simon, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Pieper, Mrs. F. F. Proctor, and Mrs. Renee Caullet. In another party were, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Riegel and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin DeWitt Riegel. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roesing and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson had tea together.

Mrs. Ledyard Cogswell was hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Hinde, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Gayle Rosson, Mrs. Charles Weigand, Mrs. William H. Williams, Mrs. Gordon Law, Mrs. Bingham Plunkett, Mrs. William F. Bode, Mrs. Arthur O. Wellman, Col. John M. Gray, Mr. Raymond G. Noble, Mr. Fred H. Ward, Mr. Harry Skillman, and Mr. Percy C. Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robertson entertained Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stalfort, Mrs. John L. Robertson, Misses Beatrice and Muriel Schoonmaker, Mrs. Robertson von Struven, the Misses Claire and Cornelia Stalfort, Miss Dell Robertson, and Mr. John Wells.

Mr. Harry Skillman entertained at dinner, honoring Mrs. Edmond Frisch and Mr. and Mrs. James A. McGaughey.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pope of Sunset Avenue were hosts at a dinner party at The Breakers and Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Hinde were hosts at a dinner last week to honor Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Zuver of the cottage colony. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McSweeney were Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott and Mrs. Constance Buckminster Marcy.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Huber of New York returned to The Breakers for their usual season visit. Mr. Huber is general business manager of the Scripps-Howard newspapers. Arriving with them was Miss Ruth Thompson Wallace of Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Arriving to spend two weeks at The Breakers were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Weber, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Feltman of Clarke Avenue.

Mrs. John Cronin and her sons, John Greene Cronin, and Richard Barry Cronin, of Scarsdale, N. Y., arrived for their annual visit. Mrs. Cronin is the former Elizabeth Greene, daughter of Mr. John W. Greene of The Breakers.

Here from Hartford, Conn., are Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crowley. Col. Owen Kenan has returned to the hotel for a second visit this season.

Arriving at The Breakers for the season were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kirk Love of Johnstown, Pa., and Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Falvey of Boston have arrived for their usual stay. Mr. Falvey is president of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Co.

Arriving for a visit of several days were Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Kemmerer of Princeton, N. J. Dr. Kemmerer is a noted economist and author and has lectured often in Palm Beach.

Joining the New England colony were Mr. and Mrs. William Gallup of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. J. Scott Fowler of Philadelphia, are among arrivals at the hotel as are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Knapp of Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Dunbaugh are here for a brief visit from the Royal Victoria at Nassau.

The leisurely tempo of life at the Brazilian Court Hotel continues to attract the nation's conservative socialites, who make it their winter residence. The two spacious patios, bright with flowers and luxurious tropical planting, and the quiet, sheltered cloister are the centers of social activity during the cocktail hour and in the evening, when Dudley Doe and his versatile orchestra entertain. As an added attraction, Miss Ilsley Deering Bartlett, well known character analyst and numerologist, is appearing daily during the cocktail hour.

The arrival of many prominent annual winter visitors has given impetus to activity at the hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Strong Mulford of Oak Knoll, Montclair, N. J., have arrived for the season and are occupying their penthouse there. The Mulfords have already been hosts at various dinner parties at the clubs of the resort and have been the guests of honor at other functions. Mr. and Mrs. Guernsey Curran, who have been there for some time, returned north last week but will be back in March to spend the remainder of the season. Mrs. H. W. Kingsbury of Scranton, Pa., and her sister, Mrs. Alfred Ogden of New York are well known guests, who are at the Brazilian Court for their annual sojourn. Mrs. Kingsbury is the mother of Mrs. Clinton Sibley Dow, who, with Mr. Dow, is a member of the Palm Beach social set.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆
Prominent figures in industry, who have registered recently at the Palm Beach Hotel include Mr. William M. Holmes, vice-president of Bonwit-Teller in New York, who is there for his annual winter visit. He was accompanied by Mrs. Holmes and her mother, Mrs. Marie Corrie. Miss Ruth West, vice-president in charge of publicity for Saks Fifth Avenue, is another well known guest who arrived at the hotel for a brief visit. Miss Lois Elliman, well known young socialite singer, who opened her engagement a short time ago at the Colony Club, also is a guest there.

Ormond Beach

SOCIETY at this resort will divide its attention during the week between social functions and the 1940 tournament season which opened at the Golf Club today with the qualifying round in the 22nd Ormond Beach Championship taking place. The 18-hole finals will be held Saturday morning.

I. L. "Ike" Merrill, the Lake Worth champion, is seeking his third win in the Ormond Beach event. He holds the amateur competitive course record with a 69 which he turned in to capture medal honors in the 1938 championship. Among others competing are L. J. Noah, Jr., of Old Greenwich, Conn.; Dana Steele, of Tamworth, N. H.; S. L. McKay, of Sarnia, Ont.; Melville Alexander, Jr., of New York, and William H. Robinson, of New Smyrna Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Scott Fowler, of Oak Lane, Philadelphia, have returned to the Hotel Ormond following a sojourn at The Breakers.

Among the charming winter visitors is Mrs. T. C. Matthews, of Lewistown, Pa., who has opened her house on Seton Trail for the season. She has her two younger children with her, Harriet and Tommy, while the oldest boy, Sammy, is attending a military academy in the north. Mrs. Matthews will be joined later in the season by her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Jones have been among the most active of the cottage colonists in entertaining friends. They gave a birthday dinner at their ocean-front home in honor of Mrs. Charles Thrasher. Attending were, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Max Zahn, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. McKee, Miss Helen Meeker, Mr. Ralph Henson and Mr. Thrasher. The Joneses also were hosts at a recent buffet supper to which more than twenty-five guests were invited.

Mrs. Henry Herbert Oltman, of New York, has opened the long-closed Bostrum estate on the River Road, Villa Sans Souci, where many of the social set desiring a quiet and home-like atmosphere, will pass the coming weeks. Mrs. Oltman graciously entertained recently members of the colony's smart set at tea.

The annual card party of St. Paul's was held the end of January in the ballroom of the Ormond with a long list of patrons and patronesses. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. William J. Mully was general chairman of the affair and was assisted by a men's committee and members of the ladies' auxiliary. There were 71 tables in play and over 90 prizes awarded.

Mrs. Kenneth B. Murdock, of Cambridge, Mass., is visiting her parents, the George Eustus Potts, at their home on Seton Trail. Mrs. Murdock's husband is professor of English at Harvard University.

Miss Margaret Rhodes was hostess at a tea at her home recently in honor of Mrs. Murdock. Guests included Mrs. Charles Garth and her house guest, Miss Caroline Barber, Mrs. Harold T. Butts and her guests, Mrs. E. B. Mallorie of England, and Miss Marcia Henry, as well as Mrs. Potts and Mrs. Murdock.

The graceful crowns of the symmetrically formed pineapples growing in everwidening tiers of delicate fronds create the illusion of a field of miniature bursting shells.

The soft green fronds of graceful coconut trees sharply etched against cloudless blue skies blends with the riotous tangle of the tropical foliage along Royal Palm Way in beautiful Royal Park.

and the Philadelphia Graphic Arts Association will arrive on Saturday to open play in their respective tournaments over the Ormond Beach course. Among those having made reservations at the Hotel Ormond, tournament headquarters, include, Mr. and Mrs. George V. B. Leitch, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Sterns, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Havana

In Gay Mood

Havana's magnificent Capitol building, with its priceless mahogany senate rooms and diamond imbedded marble floors, is the fitting center for a veritable Caliph of Bagdad of adventurous settings, in festive Cuba.

WITH air traffic between Florida and the Cuban capital reaching a new high and cruise ships unloading their visitors from the bleak north as the carnival season approaches, Havana is humming a gay tune, a tune that finds its echoes in the smiles of many happy resorters, who find the city of colorful contrasts more attractive than ever before.

Demand for accommodations on its regularly scheduled four-daily flights between Miami and Havana, has prompted Pan American Airways to provide two additional flights. Each flight brings a peak load of thirty passengers, and many of them are taking advantage of the recently inaugurated air excursion to the Isle of Pines, only an hour's flight from Havana. Legendary hideaway of swashbucklers and pirates, the Isle of Pines was made famous in Robert Louis Stevenson's adventurous "Treasure Island," and the modern voyage to the colorful island paradise results in a strange and restful change after a few days amid the brilliant and gay atmosphere of Havana.

Havana, of course, is still the focal point of winter activity in Cuba, although American visitors are taking advantage of Cuba's inland attractions. But here, in this Paris of the tropics, there is a lilt and perpetual festival spirit that will reach its gayest heights early in February when the six weeks of truly Latin carnival season begin.

Visitors from the continent who plan to make Cuba a port of call on their winter tour of the tropics will find Havana gayest during February. Supplementing the previously scheduled cruise ships that will arrive here in time for the carnival season is the S. S. Evangeline, which inaugurates a new service between Miami and Havana late this month. Three sailings in each direction every week begin Jan. 23rd with the initial departure from Miami, arriving in Havana the following morning. This newly planned service will make direct connections with trains from New York and other northern cities and affords winter vacationists with an unusual opportunity to include Havana in their itineraries, however brief.

Cuba's "Old Guard" was out in force this past week to mark the 25th anniversary of Oriental Park, Havana's colorful race course where the winter schedule was launched with the Jockey Club Handicap, taken by F. C. Travis' good three-year-old, "Night Chase" by a head in a driving finish before one of the largest crowds of the Havana sports season.

The sports calendar is highlighted by the qualifying rounds for the club championship at the Jaimanitas Club, known to American golfers as the Havana Biltmore Club, where eighty players teed off for places in the match rounds that will be contested each week-end. Defending his title is Tony Carrillo, who faces stern competition from Jimmy Fenton, Bilin Gaston, Orencio Nodarse, Fernando Arellano and many other Cuban and American golfers.

At the Habana Madrid and the Fronton Jai-Alai, Americans are gathering in greater numbers to watch the world's fastest sport. Here in its native setting and before galleries that are explosively enthusiastic, jai alai is a sporting spectacle unlike anything else on the American continent.

Bright in a city sparkling with gay night life is Havana's Grand National Casino, on the outskirts of the city and within easy motoring distance. Gala Thursday have already been launched here. There is a night club atmosphere on a scale not known in New York or other northern cities and the gaming rooms provide a touch of Monte Carlo at its liveliest.

Three hours isn't much time to devote to a "rubberneck" tour of this gay capital of Cuba, but cruiseships and their sometimes too brief calls being what they are, that's about the average length of time spent by visitors bent on "seeing the town."

With twenty-four hours in port the average stay for ship's passengers, most make a dash for shore and the kaleidoscopic jaunt that affords them a reasonably complete glimpse of this "Paris of the Tropics." And in most cases they set a course for the Prado, for everything of interest centers about this sumptuous and historic thoroughfare. It slices its way in a direct line right through the heart of the city, two miles of magnificent promenade sheltered for its full length by lush laurel trees completely shading the marble walk from the tropic sun. It extends from Fraternity Park, at the south, to the Gulf shore at the north; here it permits an excitingly different closeup of historic old Morro Castle across the harbor, silent sentinel for three and a half centuries against assault from the sea.

Dominating the Prado and its environs is Cuba's Capitol, a magnificent structure housing the nation's legislature. And within a few blocks are all the shops, the cafes and hotels that stamp Havana as a city apart from all others.

Tropical Sartorial Sketches

MR. MAURICE FATIO

Colorful in a Basque shirt and grey shetland wool trousers is seen at the conclusion of a match at the Everglades Club's golf course.

HAVING now reached that phase of the Palm Beach season, when wives (or sweethearts) no longer shy like a startled gazelle, when they inadvertently encounter the man of their dreams arrayed in all of his resort glory, strolling down Worth Avenue, or bursting into view like a Florida sunset over the horizon of the Everglades Club's golf course, the uninhibited male has cast aside all conventional sartorial fetters and can now really be seen in his true resort colors.

With the memory of metropolitan standardized attire fast becoming a part of the dim past, the hardy sportsman in Palm Beach, hews to the core of the informal in daytime attire and lets the chips fall where they may. The fact that the chips get in the hair of some of the newcomers to the resort, who refuse to discard stand-up collars for the open at the throat sport shirt, and loose, colorful sports wear, acts, not as a deterrent to these hardy souls, but rather as an incentive to more brilliant sartorial conquests.

In the vanguard of the color bearers of course is the always beautifully clad Mr. Robert Appleton, who owns a wardrobe replete with the choicest colors of the resort rainbow. Glimpsed recently at a cocktail party in the beautiful Everglades Club, Mr. Appleton was a poem in yellow and bright cerise. His exquisitely fashioned sports coat was of yellow corduroy; his neckerchief of silk cerise; his trousers in the same shade of cerise and his shoes the ultimate word in picturesque Mexican huaraches.

Mr. Woolworth Donahue, who furnished the news-beat of the season recently with his surprise marriage to the lovely Mrs. Gretchen Hearst, was glimpsed the day previous to this happy event with a pastel green linen coat and russet brown linen trousers. His shoes were brown and white, with thick wedge-heel soles. His sports shirt was russet brown, with a wide flaring collar.

Mr. James Donahue, seen on the same day, was attired in a strikingly tasteful ensemble of rose colored trousers and ashes of roses sports coat; the whole in silk corduroy and topped off with a gorgeous yellow silk scarf. His shoes were in a beige shade of the popular Bucko model.

A sports coat that was outstanding even on Worth Avenue, where smart clothes are commonplace, was seen on Mr. John Frederick Jordan of Noroton, Connecticut, who was captured photographically on a recent shopping tour with his wife. Beautiful beige and russet plaids in an interesting English weave of tweed and an attractive blending of smart tailoring and comfortable cut made this coat outstanding. Almost as distinctive was a jacket of white doeskin worn under the coat and a bright vari-colored neckerchief.

Never commonplace is Mr. Maurice Fatio, who prefers his colors in Basque shirts and is generally seen with an interesting new version of this popular sports wear on the golf links. His latest contribution to the resort picture was a stunning combination of red and cream stripes with the comfortable Basque neck, pull-over jacket worn with grey flannels.

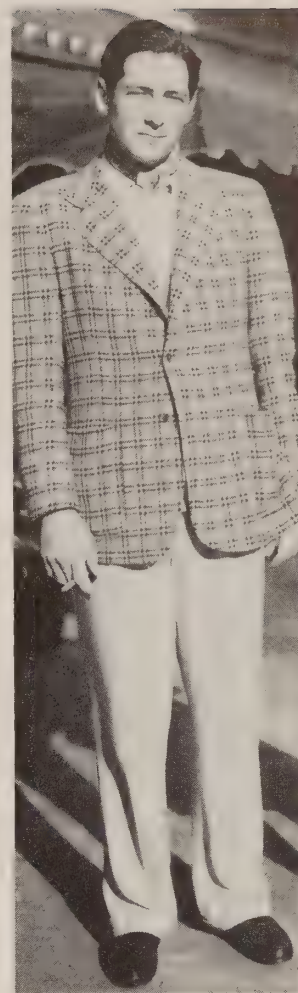

Prince Alexis Obolensky is another resorter, who can be counted upon to introduce something different in colors and tailoring. The tall broad shouldered sportsman was seen on Worth Avenue recently with a striking Jib model sports coat in silk corduroy, in a pastel shade of green worn with russet green linen trousers. Thong sandals finished off this very interesting masculine ensemble.

The ubiquitous Mr. Ham Fisher, creator of Joe Palooka, and noted wit, was seen at the Alibi on the day of his arrival in the conventional northern mufti, but glimpsed on the following day was attired as colorfully as the most seasoned Palm Beachite. He wore a nautical sports coat in royal blue shetland wool, tomato colored trousers, blue bucko shoes with perforated tops and wedge soles, and the most beautiful red silk scarf, viewed in Palm Beach this season.

Mr. James Reeves was very smartly attired recently in cream colored flannels and a flannel sports coat with a beautiful shade of rose. He also wore an interestingly designed silk neckerchief in a combination of several beautifully blended colors.

The blazer stripe is really undergoing a revival this year, with Palm Beach's many sports settings as the background for numerous and colorful versions of the Joseph's Coat that was the sartorial "piece de resistance" of the gay nineties. Seen recently on Worth Avenue was Mr. William Sweatt, Jr., with one of the most interesting color combinations in blazers noted this season on the island. Pastel green and a deeper shade of Erin's favorite color furnished the color motif for Mr. Sweatt's beautiful sports coat. Three patch pockets and leather covered buttons were outstanding features of this coat; the material striped tweed. Matching neckerchief in silk and natural color leather sandals finished off this picture of sunny sartorial elegance.

Mr. C. Mathews Dick is another trail blazer in the field of casual wear. Glimpsed on his way to the Everglades Club's tennis courts to witness an exhibition match Mr. Dick was wearing a Tyrol sports shirt of royal blue shetland wool.

Tastes and Toilettes

TRENDS:—Fashions seem to run in cycles and this season has been marked, even though it is yet in its infancy, by revivals of a number of interesting styles in accessories as well as gowns and frocks. Gloves have become important again . . . just as earrings have become a wildfire rage for both daytime and evening. . . . What is more, there is a revived interest in the "matching three" . . . gloves, hat, and bag. Daytime gloves have an infinite variety . . . some are "air-conditioned," others are nubby pigskin for driving and sportswear and there are many, many novelties. . . . In the daytime, also, they become more dramatic when you wrinkle them slightly about the wrist, and wear over them your favorite bracelet or bangle.

Evening gloves are much more diversified . . . their length is somewhat half-way between wrist and elbow . . . you can have them in soft velvet, intricate with shirring in colors to match your gowns . . . then again there are many types which leave your fingers free, embellished with cunning ruffles and bows . . . one pair we saw recently were shiny gold lame with gauntlet effects . . . a brilliant accessory . . . an a wonderful complement for the new golden carryall type of evening bag.

Fashions in coiffures are more than interesting . . . unique hair dress being more exciting for evening, while resort women are still particularly fond of the tailored styles during the day . . . the younger set will not relinquish the long sweeping bob with a dramatic crop of curls or rolls bedecking the tops of their heads.

Under tropical stars, flowers are the favorites for coiffure decoration . . . sometimes a single orchid or gardenia perches atop milady's upswept curls . . . then again it may be a pastel colored hair clip of floral pattern . . . rhinestone and jewelled clips have their places also.

Flashes: Mrs. Horace Chase Stebbins is among the many winter colonists who is an advocate of the jacketed evening gown which is a here-to-stay vogue this season. . . . Mrs. Stebbins' black silk jersey gown at The Breakers last week was topped with a fitted jacket of shimmering black paillettes . . . a silver fox scarf completed the costume . . . Mrs. Eugene Pargny's gown of black crepe has a basque bodice of ruby sequins.

Noted at a dinner recently was Mrs. Charles Henry Hamilton, whose finger-tip length white fox cape was a lovely complement for her gown of Biscayne blue crepe . . . the skirt was accordion pleated and a smart touch was bestowed by the silver kid belt. . . . Mrs. Eben Howes Ellison wears a softly molded gown of periwinkle blue . . . marquissette and appliqued lace are combined in interesting detailing while the skirt is gracefully flared.

Mrs. Edward Scott Beck was noted at a Whitehall dinner attired in a charming gown of black lace and net . . . her evening cape was mink. . . . Mrs. Henry Candler was noted recently wearing a striking gown with a raspberry colored jacket which was fitted about the waist . . . the skirt was a wonderful shade of fuschia.

Mrs. Joseph F. Cocoran at the Beach Club wore a stunning gown of silver lame which was embellished with unusual circular designs of many colors. . . . Mrs. Robertson von Struven's black dinner gown was featured by a shimmering sequin bodice and sequin paneled skirt.

Mrs. Edward S. Lovering wears a black velvet dinner gown with a tailored and fitted jacket and the popular long sleeves . . . the front is decorated with a leaf motif in gold kid . . . she tops the costume with a striking hip length coat of beautiful silver fox. . . . Mrs. Lewis E. Lawes wear one of the new silk jersey gowns with a white short-sleeved top and gay print skirt . . . a rust colored suede belt makes a bright contrast.

Stripes for sports wear are still holding forth especially among the younger set. . . . Miss Lorraine Graves wears a red and white striped silk jersey dress which is gathered at the waist, has a full skirt, and the new long sleeves which are gathered and banded at the wrist. . . . Miss Mary Barton Fox wears a striped fabric frock made similarly to Miss Graves', the stripes are narrow, however.

Mrs. Herbert Farrell wears a charming gown of Chinese red lace and net which has ruffled sleeves and many, many ruffles on the bouffant skirt.

Partial to the peasant mood is Mrs. Barclay Kountze Douglas, who was noted recently on Worth Avenue wearing a simply gathered skirt with a flamboyant blouse in large flower prints . . . harmonizing with the costume were her gay head kerchief and gathered moccasin ties. . . . Mrs. Eric Loder's casual frock was featured by a draped neckline and was an allover print.

Mrs. Frank Robertson wore a smart costume recently which highlighted several of the newest fashion features . . . the material was combined silk and wool jersey . . . the skirt which was gathered and full, was black and white striped silk jersey . . . the top was white silk jersey, while the slender midriff was bright "stop" red which matched the short bolero . . . she wore a white and red classic felt and matching shoes.

Mrs. Daniel Drake Smith's white sharkskin suit provides an interesting contrast with fabric on lapels . . . and a polka dot flange on the V neckline . . . there are revers and pocket flaps on the jacket. . . . Miss Doris Fields wore an interesting jacket with closely fitted waistline and slightly flared hipline as part of the popular trouser fashion.

During the cold spell many smart resort coats made their appearance. . . . Mrs. Richard C. Crowley wore a stunning white flannel coat, which boasted a hood trimmed with soft white fox.

For an active sports dress Mrs. Hunt T. Wagstaff chose alternating panels of navy and white . . . the broad shoulder strap was cut in one with the panels of the dress itself, the material is sharkskin. . . . Miss Marion Shevlin tops a feather weight wool of raspberry hue with a short silver fox bolero . . . there is a sky-high twisted turban to match the dress.

Practically as we go to the linotypes comes news of the poll of Parisian dressmakers for the ten best dressed women in the world . . . among the top in fashion rankings are several who have spent much time in the resort . . . the rival Duchesses of Windsor and Kent, tied for first place, Mme. Patino, previously first, dropped to third place. Doris Duke Cromwell, The Gegum Aga Khan, Mrs. Gilbert Miller, the Baroness Eugene de Rothschild, Mrs. Harrison Williams, Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, and Queen Elizabeth . . . were named in that order. . . . Although very few of the women named have tastes in common, it is obvious that each in her own way, is considered practically perfect in her choice of wardrobe.

Cottage Colony Society Life

A very happy compromise between social gaiety and civic duty is being taken in stride by the smart set this season in Palm Beach, with the cottage colony enjoying the leisurely graceful life that is so distinctively a Palm Beach hall-mark, and contributing in their own inimitable fashion to a number of worthwhile causes.

From their own tropically beautiful patios to the smart gathering spots on the island, the social colony is combining a variety of activities for various charitable organizations with breezily colorful parties. It is the rule rather than the exception to see beautifully gowned ladies raptly engaged in knitting various garments for stricken Finland or other war sufferers, while attending everything from one of Emil Petti's incomparable concerts at the Everglades Club to their own private house parties.

Prominent in this field in Palm Beach is the colony's branch of "Les Colis de Trianon Versailles," who meet in the island's beautiful villas each week and carry their obviously absorbing work with them to the fashionable Paramount Theatre, the race track at Hialeah, the style presentals at the Everglades Club and any and all of their smart gathering places.

Members of the Palm Beach group of "Les Colis de Trianon" met recently at "Villa del Sarmiento," the beautiful sea-side villa of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien, with the orchidaceous Mrs. O'Brien as their hostess.

Following an attractive luncheon this interesting group gathered in the sun-caressed patio for their weekly knitting circle and an informal chat over cocktails. Among the reporters participating in this weekly gathering were Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, Mrs. Diana Guest, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mrs. Edward Shearson, Mrs. Edward Wycoff Harris, Mrs. Pierre L. Barbey, Mrs. Edgar A. Bryan, Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, Mrs. Eric Loder, Mrs. Joseph Kerrigan, Mrs. Daniel Dulany Hunter, Mrs. Edward J. Reeves, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, Mrs. Wolcott Blair, Mrs. Geoffrey N. Gates, Mrs. C. Egerton Warburton, the Honorable Mrs. Alfred Anson, Miss Mary Munn and the Misses Lorna and Sheila Mackintosh.

One of the popular stops on the island's schedule of house parties is the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. LeRay Berdeau. Mr. and Mrs. Berdeau were hosts recently to a group that included their house guest, Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell of London. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Beckman, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Maische, Mrs. Edmund C. Lynch, Mrs. Albert F. Jaeckel, Mrs. C. Eugene Crawley, Miss Ruth West, Mr. Paul Raynor, Mr. Frank Cheek and Mr. Jerome Zerbe.

"Amado" continues to be one of the most attractive of the colony's sites for parties, with the lovely ocean-front home of Mr. Charles A. Munn the setting for many gay gatherings. Many parties have been planned for the near future for Princess Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst, who is the guest of Miss Mary Munn and her father, Mr. Charles A. Munn. The Princess, who is a prominent and popular figure both here and abroad, has visited here frequently in other seasons.

A bit of romance was injected into the Palm Beach picture recently with the arrival via plane of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joseph Reavely, who concluded an aerial honeymoon, that had its inception in the north, by a visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Kaufman, the bride's parents, in Palm Beach.

The honeymooners were married in a double ceremony

The four left Roosevelt Field by plane last Monday, flew to Washington, and motored together to Warrenton, where the service was performed by the Reverend Dr. Gaskins.

Mrs. Reavely is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Kaufman of Park Avenue in New York and Villa Sonia, in Palm Beach. She is the former Mrs. Marie Louise Kaufman Tonella and is a sister of Mrs. Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia, Mrs. Edward Harding III of New York and Philadelphia, Mrs. Joseph Wintersteen of Chicago, Countess Juliet de Manio of London, Mr. Young Kaufman and Mr. Graveraet Kaufman of New York.

From the island's attractive private parties to the smart decor of the Paramount Theatre is a popular trek in Palm Beach. Dr. and Mrs. Leland Eggleston Cofer were recent cinema hosts to an attractive gathering following a dinner party at their home, honoring Mrs. George B. Wagstaff.

Among those in their party were, Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre L. Barbey, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Farrell, Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Edgar A. Bryan, Mrs. Bird Lewis, Mr. Philip Giddens, Mr. Stanley Mitchell and Mr. George Brooke.

Mrs. L. Bartholomew Ford of Clarke Avenue entertained at luncheon for an interesting group of friends at Bradley's recently. The luncheon was given in honor of Mrs. Ford's daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Butler, who is her house guest. Other guests included, Mrs. Albert H. Schmidt, Mrs. George C. White, Mrs. W. Earl Dodge, and the two debutante daughters of Princess Rospigliosi, Princess Camilla and Princess Francesca.

"Nineteenth Hole," the attractive Golf View Road home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Appleton, was the setting for a buffet dinner recently in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Peavey Wells. Their other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson, Princess Laura Rospigliosi, Mrs. Paul Healy and Mr. Charles Govern.

"Tarpon Island," the private isle of the E. Steuart Davis, which is just a stone's throw from the immaculately groomed fairways of the Everglades Club and in the heart of the social colony, continues to be the background for large and interesting parties. Their strikingly beautiful home, with its magnificent view and intriguing architecture, was the setting for a colorful cocktail party recently, with many of the smart set as their guests.

ing for her host of friends this season, both at her home, with its priceless murals and lovely patio and in the unique beach village, which is formed by her colony of attractively decorated little houses that grace the water front at her estate.

These cottages with their complete solarium, cocktail bar and immaculately groomed tennis courts are the outstanding miniature Deauville of the resort. Everything from bathing to a varied sports program can be carried on here. Seen from the road the colorful blue and white striped roofs in this tiny cottage colony arise from a profusion of beautiful tropical shrubbery, palm trees and fragrant flower beds.

Not the least of the beautiful sights on the magnificent Donahue estate is the orchid propagating house, which is one of a series of glass houses that shelter rare and beautiful members of the floral group. Guests at Mrs. Donahue's parties have become accustomed to an intriguing variety of rare and beautiful blooms as the decorative mode for her attractive gatherings.

Col. and Mrs. James R. Branch of Royal Palm Way are among the many Palm Beach hosts to entertain at attractive parties since the inception of the season. Among their guests recently at an interesting party given at the Beach Club, were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Glasgow, Captain and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, Miss Helen Warren and Mr. Blythe W. Branch.

Villa Rosalinda

New Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth C. Warner

"Villa Rosalinda," charming new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth C. Warner, located at the corner of Pelican and El Vedado Ways, created in the stately late Georgian period of the 19th century but modified in design and plan to fit present day needs, by John L. Volk, resort architect.

TYPIFYING the latest trend in delightful resort villas is the beautiful new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth C. Warner of Minneapolis and Palm Beach, long members of the island's winter colony. Located at the corners of Pelican and El Vedado Ways, Mr. and Mrs. Warner's new home, just completed this summer, overlooks the waters of Lake Worth, facing in a southwesterly direction and affording an unobstructed view for miles to the southward.

"Villa Rosalinda," was inspired by the more stately Georgian houses of the 19th century, but was modified in design and plans by John L. Volk, well known resort architect, to fit present day requirements.

Reached from the forecourt off Pelican Way, is the entrance portico with its beautifully proportioned columns.

Once in the entrance hall, one is afforded a very pleasant vista of Lake Worth through openings in the gallery and loggia.

The entrance hall is connected with a large gallery by a series of marble steps, flanked by a most effective wrought iron railing of exquisite design, in front of which, on the entrance hall side, stands a bronze piece mounted upon a marble shaft.

The main floor is comprised of living room, on the southeast and a dining room on the northwest, separated by the large gallery, with powder room, men's lounge, stair hall and loggia, all opening off from it. At one end is the living room door and at the other, the dining room entrance.

The library, with its restful walls of wood panelling, is entered from the living room.

The living room is beautifully proportioned and high ceilinged, tastefully furnished, and contains a large bay window overlooking the lake. The walls are tinted a pale grey-green, with large mirrors at intervals, flanked by wood panelling. There is a rich looking marble mantle adorning the fireplace to complete the scene.

The cloistered pavillion juts out from the dining room on the north-erly side, with the curve of the lake shore approaching appreciably near, opening to the out-of-doors through a series of beautiful arches on three sides.

These arches may be closed by means of Venetian blinds cleverly concealed, which, when let down, form a room. The pavillion also contains a charming cocktail bar and is sensibly furnished in bamboo and arranged for informal entertaining.

A semi-circular row of smooth stone columns separate the loggia from a wide stone terrace overlooking the lake.

The entire dwelling, with white as its prevailing motif, is enhanced by rich tropical planting and detailed landscaping, providing a beautiful spot for gracious hosts to entertain their many friends in a Florida setting that could not be more appropriate for a home.

A delightful view of the front of "Villa Rosalinda," taken from the interior of the cloistered pavillion, showing the effective treatment of the semi-circular loggia and the bricked terrace, enhanced by tropical planting and a panoramic view of Lake Worth.

Tournament Tennis and Golf

WITH the weather living up to its normal reputation once more, sports enthusiasts who have been confining their efforts to finding an electric heater and a comfortable 19th hole during the past fortnight, have practically forgotten the regrettable incident of weather.

Balmy breezes are making the resort a tropical paradise once more and the sports calendars top golf tournament, at the time of writing this, is scheduled to get under way Monday at the Palm Beach Golf Club.

This event is the annual Women's Championship of Palm Beach, with top-flight feminine linksters from all sections of the country participating.

Included among the entires are, Miss Grace Amory,

Shown teeing off at the fashionable Palm Beach Country Club is Miss Sonia Phipps of Spring Hills, Roslyn, L. I., and Palm Beach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps.

Palm Beach socialite golfer, who won the medal round in last week's Miami Biltmore tourney; Miss Patty Berg, diminutive Minneapolis golfer, who returned to competitive golf after a long layoff this summer; Miss Betty Jameson, youthful San Antonio, Texas national champion; Miss Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., Miss Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Miss Elizabeth Hicks of Long Beach, Cal., Miss Shirley Ann Johnson of Winnetka, Ill., Miss Jane Cothran of Greenville, S. C., Mrs. Leon Solomon of Memphis, Tenn., Mrs. H. D. Sterrett of Hutchinson, Kan., and Miss Marion Hocheimer of Rochester, N. Y.

Jean Bauer of Providence R. I., is this year's defending champion, having defeated Mrs. Helen Hockenjos of Lake Hopatcong, N. J., last season by the score of 3 and 2.

Annual mixed foursome tournament at the Everglades

Club gets under way next week with some of the country's foremost feminine golfers teamed with noted men players.

Among the first to enter the lists were Robert Sweeney, former British amateur golf champion, and Miss Grace Amory of Palm Beach, whose performance in the women's tourney at the Miami Biltmore amazed the large gallery, and places her definitely among the feminine golf greats in this country.

Members of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests held a most successful 33rd Annual tournament over the Palm Beach Golf Club course with more than 80 players entered in both the men and women's divisions.

Don O'Brien of Richmond, Va., tourney medalist, upset the dope when he defeated Max B. Kaesche, Ridgewood, N. J., defending champion, in the finals of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests over the Palm Beach Golf Club course, by the score of 3 and 1.

Kaesche winner of the event for two successive years, bent before the steady playing of the Virginia golfer, his approach shots lacking the push needed to get them within putting distance, and costing him fives on four different holes.

In the women's division, Mrs. Harry Payne of Haworth, N. J., defeated Miss Doris Kadel of Mamaroneck, N. Y., by the score of 3 and 2, after playing through some stiff opposition in previous rounds.

Old Guard golfers came to the fore to defeat the Ad League golfers in a special four ball foursome team match played over the Palm Beach Golf Club course.

The Old Guard chalked up a total of 59 points to 43 tallied by the Ad League golfers.

Those playing on the teams were as follows: Old Guard—John Cushman and Elmer Rich; John Whitman and H. Bedford; G. Heintzman and R. C. Maxwell; Paul Cushman and Briggs Cunningham; Hugh L. Willoughby, Jr., and W. B. Langford; Alan Wylie and Phil H. Bryan; J. E. McAuliffe and James Howard; George McCarthy, Jr., and Blain Zuver; Hugh L. Willoughby, 3d, and Col. Wade Carpenter; R. R. Vale and John Madden; H. S. Hart and Stuart Rosson; M. A. Carroll and William McNeill; Kenneth Morgan and Dr. A. S. Downs; S. A. Moody and Thomas Halton, Jr.; Clinton S. Dow and Roger Bacon.

Winter Golf League—Max Kaesche and W. E. Olson; R. Lansdell and John Kadel; C. J. Jennings and R. L. Williams; Don O'Brien and R. L. Alley; Harry Payne and William Klopman; S. Masten and F. Dixon; B. Conlin and W. E. Robinson; Edwin Goodman and S. Healey; E. J. Barber and S. Carver; J. Gray and J. Whelan; Ray Bowen and R. Clayberger; Ray McCarthy and L. C. Haines; Clayton Farris and P. MacKinney; F. O. H. Williams and Chauncey Williams; E. T. Manson and V. Barnett.

Members of the Old Guard Society of Palm Beach Golfers, nationally noted golfing organization, will hold their annual banquet at The Breakers Hotel the evening of February 20, it was made known by Mr. Edwin G. Lauder, chairman.

Other members of the committee included Mr. Edward S. Beck, Mr. Maurice W. Sloan and Mr. Hugh L. Willoughby, Jr.

Four new regular members and one honorary member were added to the Old Guard Society of Palm Beach Golfers at a recent meeting of that organization held in the club rooms over the Palm Beach Golf Club.

Regular members elected were, Mr. Thomas Halton, of Philadelphia; Mr. Briggs S. Cunningham, of Green Farms, Conn.; Mr. Frederick Bedford, of Green Farms, Conn.; and Mr. George F. Williams, of Minneapolis.

Mr. William B. Langford of Chicago, well known resort golfer and member of the Old Guard, was appointed an honorary member of the organization.

Tennis enthusiasts withstood the rigors of chilly weather and turned out in force, both to play and to watch some of the best net action seen here in some time by world famous men and women stars.

Ruth Mary Hardwick gave England a victory over the United States in the finals of the South Florida Tennis Championships at Bethesda Park West Palm Beach.

The British No. 2 netter scored a 6-1, 6-3 triumph over Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Brookline, Mass., America's No. 3 woman player.

It was Mrs. Fabyan's first tournament since last October and she was unable to cope with the hard smashes of the English girl, who was much improved after a series of winter competitions.

Miss Hardwick so dominated the play that she led, 4-0, before dropping a game in the first set, and led, 3-0 before losing a game in the second set.

Meanwhile, Bobby Riggs of Chicago, world's amateur champion, won his first winter tournament title with a brilliant forcing game which defeated Henry Prusoff, Seattle, Wash., 6-1, 7-5, 6-1.

Prusoff netted many returns as Riggs smashed placements to all parts of the court. After Prusoff had built a 5-2 lead in the second set, Riggs made a brilliant recovery to win five straight games and the set with a fine mixture of shots.

Gardner Mulloy of Miami and Prusoff teamed to defeat John Mahoney of Jackson Heights, N. Y., and John Foreman of Chicago, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2, in the men's doubles finals. The victory was the third of the season for the Mulloy-Prusoff team. The pair previously triumphed at New Orleans and Miami.

Mrs. A. Parker Bryant and Spencer Love defeated Mrs. Carlisle Norwood and John Allen by the score of 6-2 in the extra set match to decide the winner of the round robin mixed doubles event at the Bath and Tennis Club.

Mrs. Parker Bryant and Spencer Love won the first group matches with 26 games won and 10 lost after defeating Mrs. Dee Bredin and Carlisle Norwood in an extra game to decide a tie.

In the second group Mrs. Carlisle Norwood and John Allen won 24 games and lost 11.

Summary of the two groups: Group one, Mrs. A. Parker Bryant and Spencer Love, 26 games won and 10 lost; Mrs. Dee Bredin and Carlisle Norwood, 26 won and 10 lost; Miss Peggy Stevenson and Bedford Davie, 23 won and 13 lost; Miss Betty Rivinus and George Kent, 18 won and 18 lost; Miss Emily Rivinus and Britt Armfield, 15 won and 21 lost; Princess Camilla Rospigliosi and Paul Bancroft, 9 won and 27 lost; Mrs. Loring Q. White and Henry E. Noyes 9 won and 27 lost.

Group two: Mrs. Carlisle Norwood and John Allen, 24 games won and 11 lost; Mrs. A. C. Rayner and W. E. D. Stokes, 20 won and 15 lost; Mr. and Mrs. A. Nesbitt, 3d, 17 won and 18 lost; Mr. and Mrs. John Vanneck, 16 won and 19 lost; Mrs. Johnson Gensler and Emile Schmidt, 14 won and 21 lost; Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Townsend, 14 won and 21 lost.

International Set Converging at Nassau

FROM the four corners of the earth, the International Set are gathering in Nassau, loveliest of Bahama's tropical isles, and the meeting place of Continental and American society. Nassau's translucent waters, fascinating old world settings and interesting collection of virile sports settings, have attracted many of the social luminaries of two continents this season.

At the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel and its distinctive background of immaculately groomed tennis courts, sun-kissed beach, acres of beautifully cultivated tropical gardens, cottage colony along the unique Lake of Fire and internationally renowned Jungle Club, many of the visitors from the old world and the new are enjoying a diversity of sports and entertainment settings.

One of the most interesting of the island's tennis courts of Fort Montagu Beach, with many of the island's socialites enjoying tea and cocktails in a tropical setting during the games.

A keenly contested exhibition match between Mr. Edwin Brownrigg and Mr. Frank O'Toole and Mr. Jack Boucher and Mr. Reginald Farrington attracted many prominent members of the Nassau colony. Among those enjoying tea and games were Lady Elizabeth Boynton, Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy, Mr. J. Seward Johnson, Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, The Hon. J. H. Jarrett, Colonial Secretary in the Bahamas, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Odman, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Vlaanderen, Col. and Mrs. F. E. Wanklyn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tinker, whose Nassau home is one of the showplaces of the tropics.

Also Mrs. W. Machell, Commander and Mrs. Dennison, Mr. George Mosely, Miss Jean Rodney, Mr. and Mrs. T. Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Russell M. Guipe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Blake, Captain and Mrs. Frederick Russell, Mrs. Adams Sumner, Mr. B. Aspinall, Mr. William Templeton and Mr. John Sawyer.

Many of the guests at the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel are enjoying the ultra-modern Solarium in the hotel's beautiful grounds and bathing in the varicolored waters of Montagu Beach. The international set gather each day on the sun-kissed sands of Nassau's only sea beach and spend hours under gay colored parasols and swimming in water that is never over seventy degrees.

The racing season at beautiful Montagu Park will reach its zenith in February, when three-year-olds will compete for the cup that the Duke of Kent, during his honeymoon visit to Nassau, presented to the Bahamas Jockey Club. His Royal Highness, who has become fascinated by the races of the speedy Bahamian ponies, offered the trophy as an incentive for the better breeding of native stock.

Each week sees a representative group of the island's socialites enjoying the inevitable English afternoon tea and watching the horses at the picturesque track, which is a masterpiece of Bahamian architecture and tropical landscaping.

Seen recently in this picturesque and colorful setting were, Sir Charles Dundas, Governor of the Bahamas, and his lovely wife, Lady Dundas; the Hon. Robert Taylor and Mrs. Taylor, the Hon. J. H. Jarrett and Mrs. Jarrett, Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, Lady Jane Williams Taylor, Mrs. Sidney Small, Sir Harry and Lady Oakes, Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy, the Earl of Carnarvon, Mr. and Mrs. Axel Wenner-Gren, Captain Frederick Wanklyn, the glamorous Miss Brenda Frazier, Mrs. Frederick Wattriss, Miss Marian Oates, with her mother, Mrs. Philip Gossler, the James Bushes of Palm Beach and Nassau, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carey, Captain D'Arcy Rutherford, champion water skier of the world, Mr. Frederick Sigrist, the Arthur Vernays, Sir Herbert Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Holt, Mr. Howland Spencer, Mrs. R. W. G. Holt, Mr. and Mrs. George Murphy, Mrs. Edmund R. Lynch and many other well known figures in the international group that comprise Nassau society.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Seward Johnson, of New Brunswick recently leased the beautiful winter home of Commander James Dugdale on Hog Island for the season, through Mr. John F. McCarthy, well known Nassau realtor, who is famed for dealing in everything from a cottage to an island in the Bahamas. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson plan to entertain extensively in their island home this winter.

The popularity of the Emerald Beach Club, of which Sir Frederick Williams Taylor is President, is strongly in evidence this year, with buffet luncheons in the colorful lounge that overlooks one of the most inspiring seascapes on the island and cocktail parties on the terrace leading to the beach occupying many of the island's social set.

Dinner dances twice a week are popular with the exclusive set who belong to this club. Sir Charles Dundas and Lady Dundas, Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, Lady Jane Williams Taylor, Miss Brenda Frazier, Mrs. Frederick Wattriss, Sir Herbert Holt, Sir Harry and Lady Oakes, the Nelson Odmans, Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy, Mrs. Sidney Small and many other socialites are seen regularly at the Emerald Beach Club.

Nassau's two exclusive beach clubs are open for the season, and have been the background for many gay parties. The Porcupine Club on Hog Island and the Emerald Beach Club in Nassau, have both been sparkling with activity this year.

The Bahamian Club opened recently with a dinner dance, with the music of Gus Lazaro highlighting their opening dinner dance. Among those entertaining were Mrs. Philip G. Gossler, who gave a cocktail party for twenty-two, and Mrs. I. W. Killam of Montreal, who entertained at another large party.

Among recent arrivals in Nassau are Mrs. James N. Findlay and her small son, Andrew Davis, who are staying at the British Colonial Hotel for the season. Others arriving for the season at the hotel are Captain Frederick Russell and Mrs. Russell of Great Neck, L. I., Mr. and Mrs. Winslow White of Commack, L. I.

Mr. Robert H. Blake, general manager of the Cunard White Star Line and Mrs. Blake, accompanied by Mrs. Wallace Cosgrave have arrived at the hotel for a several weeks' visit.

Arrivals in the colony include, Mrs. Peter Van Vlaanderen of Ridgewood, New Jersey, who are now at their home on Cable Beach. Mrs. William Seeman (Phyllis Haver, former motion picture actress) and her mother, Mrs. Mollie Malone, have taken an apartment for the season. They have as their guest, Mrs. G. B. DeSylva, wife of the producer of "Dubarry Was a Lady," a popular New York show.

Other distinguished visitors to Nassau are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stuart, Mr. Robert Rossum, Jr., Mr. Howard L. Lansburgh, Mrs. E. C. DuBois, Mrs. Phillip C. Langdon, Miss Myrna Strauss, Mrs. Hamilton Fish Benjamin, Mrs. Evelyn Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vanderbilt, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Earp and son, James, of Sewickley, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Conn of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. George Knowles of South Dartmouth, Mass.; Mrs. A. C. Stifel, Jr., of Wheeling, W. Va., and Mrs. J. B. Morse of Wallingford, Conn.

In the realm of art, the Nassau Art Centre has concluded a successful art exhibit, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Thompson, President of the Center. Among those exhibiting were Mr. William Holmes of New York, whose oils, small sketches and waters were well received. Also Mrs. Sarah Albertson and Betty Peters Barclay of New York and Miami, exhibited a number of portraits, including one of the Duchess of Windsor and another of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

One of the most interesting transfers of land in Nassau was the recent sale of a large tract of the exclusive Cable Beach property, which adjoins the golf course and the smart Emerald Beach Club by Mr. John F. McCarthy, to Mr. Otto Badenhause. The Badenhause have leased Mrs. Martin Eagan's residence on Cable Beach for the season and intend to build one of the loveliest homes on the island on their newly acquired property.

Interest was recently centered on the Bahamas Amateur Golf Championship, played February 1-4 on the links of the Bahamas Country Club. The chief prize given to the winner is the Sir Harry Oakes Trophy.

A large field of well known American amateurs were entered in this tourney, which proved to be the sports highlight of the season in colorful Nassau. And playing over the beautiful and sporting course of the Bahamas Country Club in the interesting tournament were handsome Tommy Goodwin, winner of many tourneys in Palm Beach and in the north, Mack Fisher, J. K. Orchbach and Maxwell Morris of New York; Charles Whitehead, of New Jersey, Robert Odom of Garden City, T. E. Sommerville, Wilmington, Delaware, Jack Davison of Chicopee, Mass., Morton McCarthy of Norfolk, Va.,

UNDER THE STARS

SOCIETY and celebrities mingled at The Patio on three gala occasions during the past week, to see outstanding stars in the entertainment world and to view one of the smartest style shows ever displayed in the resort.

Harry Richman that genius among entertainers was greeted by a capacity gathering in his sole Palm Beach appearance on Wednesday evening, captivating his audience of prominent resorters with his ready wit and original songs.

In direct contrast but equally delightful was the spectacular showing of the "Gone With the Wind," hat fashions as created by the master hand of John Fredericks, displayed during the delightful luncheon interval at The Patio last Thursday.

John Fredericks, known as the "Tiffany of the hat world," appeared in person for the first time in a Palm Beach event, to direct this distinctive hat style show.

Many friends from among the resort colony gathered at The Patio to greet Adelaide Moffett, whose one night appearance marked one of the outstanding successes of her singing career.

High point of the evening's singing centered around the stress was joined by Ted Milford, the sensational English duet, "Why Do I Love You," in which the lovely young song-tenor, who appears nightly at The Patio.

One of the most distinguished groups attending the affair, at a long center table, consisted of Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, Mr. Robert Sweeny, Mr. and Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Heminway, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. C. Egerton Warburton, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Luis Martinez de las Rivas, and Mr. Phillip Giddens.

Mr. Jules S. Bache, internationally known financier and sportsman, was host to Baron and Baroness Jacques Maische and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Beckman, while nearby were Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanna Stokes and Mr. and Mrs. T. Wentworth Boykin.

Mr. John Jacob Astor, 3d, was host to a gay party consisting of Mrs. Trevitt Rees, Mr. Archibald McNeil, Jr., Mr. James Stewart Miss Peggy Stevenson, Mr. Robert Davis and Mr. Henry Barbey.

Another interesting dinner party was that of Count and Countess Podjursky, Prince Mikhail Goundoroff, Countess Jean de Salverte and Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Strekalovsky.

Capt. E. Hawley Zimmerman was kept busy during the evening renewing friendships with well known celebrities who were noted in gay parties. These included Sam Snead, nationally known professional golfer, Ham Fisher, creator of Joe Palooka, Jerome Zerbe, famed society photographer, Miss Nina Wilcox Putnam, well known novelist, who was present with her husband, Mr. Philip Eliot, Mr. Harry Silvey, associate of the late O. O. McIntyre, with Mrs. Silvey, and Sheila Barrett talented monologist.

Interesting twosomes on the dance floor included Mr. James Stewart and Miss Elizabeth McCarthy, whose impromptu rhumba dance brought much applause; Mr. Arturo Rodman de Heeren and Mrs. Trevitt Rees, Mr. Robert Hewitt and Mrs. Ritchey Farrell, Mr. Paul Glanton and Mrs. Polly D'Orsay Palmer.

Mrs. Reed Albee and Mrs. Edwin G. Lauder formed a dinner foursome with Miss Luella Hurd and Mr. Tommy Goodwin, while at another dance floor table were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Feltman, Mr. Joseph D. Bannon, Mr. Harry Kalton, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis D'Sterre and Mr. James Nolan.

MISS GRACE M. AMORY

Popular socialite and one of the best amateur golfers in the country, is seen leaving the Patio in Palm Beach. Miss Amory is the daughter of the late Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer of Colorado Springs, Colo., Newport, R. I., Kingstree, S. C., and "Kinloch House," Dunkeld, Scotland.

Mr. James Stewart was also host to a group of the younger set including Mr. Mason Tucker, Miss Elizabeth McCarthy, Mr. E. Bedford Davie, Mr. William Ross Howard, 3rd, Miss Marian Oates, Miss Peggy Stevenson.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Goodman were with a large party including, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Allan White, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Goodman.

Others observed included Mr. and Mrs. James Howard and Mr. Ray Bill Mr. Donald Horsey, Mrs. Archibald McNeil, Jr., and Mrs. H. B. Naramore, Princess Francesca Rospigliosi, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Viow, Miss Marjorie Wilkinson, Miss Irene Hayes, Mr. Frank Valier and Mr. Arthur Williams, and many more.

Definitely cosmopolitan in air is the Chambord, new Palm Beach restaurant specializing in delectable French cuisine which attracts many members of the international set as well as scores of resort socialites. Presided over by "Alex" Hounie, who is well known to New Yorkers who haunt the Manhattan Chambord, this gourmet's rendezvous offers tantalizing menus to a discriminating clientele. While leisurely enjoying luncheons and dinners which are complemented with choicest wines from Old France, guests may observe the interesting culinary activities of the chef and his assistants through the modern plate glass kitchen.

Mrs. Diana Guest was hostess at luncheon at the Chambord for a group of friends. Among her guests was Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy.

Mrs. Horace Chase Stebbins was also among winter colonists entertaining at the Chambord for luncheon. Her guests were Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mrs. Edward Shearson and Mrs. John C. King.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Holmsen at luncheon at the Chambord included Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Reeves and Mr. Barclay Kountze Douglas.

Mrs. Walter J. Lapham was hostess at luncheon to Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Alexander and Mrs. B. J. Lapham.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude K. Boettcher were hosts at a luncheon for their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. James Burns, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell A. Mayberry were hosts at a dinner party at the Chambord recently. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanderson Mr. and Mrs. Ruby Newman, Mrs. Wilfred Gray, Mrs. George L. Mayberry, Mrs. Frank C. Skinner and Mr. James Sheedy.

Many other resorters also found the Chambord a cozy and warm retreat from wintry winds last week. Mr. Fred Engel was host at a dinner for six. His guests included the Countess d'Osserich, Miss Irene Haye, Miss Marjorie Wilkins, Mr. Peppe D'Abrew and Mr. Jack Ostertorck.

Mr. Blythe Branch was host at a luncheon party. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Glasgow were among his guests.

Mrs. E. Earl Dodge gave a small luncheon at the Chambord.

Mr. and Mrs. Guernsey Curran were hosts at dinner to Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Balsam and Mr. and Mrs. Guernsey Curran, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Peavey Wells dined there as did Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Rauh.

Mr. Henry I. Barbey was also host at a dinner party at the Chambord recently. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore and Mr. Heath Moore were in another party. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harris were among dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Goodman.

With the innovation of the famous Passy Cuisine at the Colony Club, hostesses are no longer finding a problem in "dining out" in Palm Beach. The social set has been voluble in their praise of the efforts of Chef Henri Verge, particularly when speaking of the Wednesday and Saturday Dinners de Gala, which offer a wide variety of entrees.

This Wednesday night, the Hartmans, famous dance satirists, who have delighted local audiences in several previous appearances, will dance at the Colony Club at the regular Wednesday night gala party.

Among recent regular patrons have been noticed: Mr. Vernon Duke, and Mr. George Abbott, Miss Geraldine Spreckels, Mr. Randolph Burke, Mr. Frederick Lewisohn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, Mr. Robert Hewitt, and Mrs. Brookfield Van Rensselaer. A recent party of four was Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Reeves.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Pindar have flown over from Nassau to attend several Gala parties. Others who have been seen included: Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hemminway, Mr. William Rhinelander Stewart, Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Prince Mikhail Goundoroff, and the Countess Jeanne de Salverte.

Glamour Under the Sun

WHAT does glamour mean to you? someone asked Helena Rubinstein the other day. The answer came, quick as the flash of her keen dark eyes. "Interest in life, interest in people, interest in what goes on in this world. That shows in the face, in the whole personality. A bored face is an old face."

Madame Rubinstein continued, "The woman who is really interested in everything that goes on about her is the last person to neglect her appearance. She is alert to changes in the world and their effects on fashions in clothes, hair styles, make up—on manners and customs. She may be conservative, but she is too closely in touch with her times to be old-fashioned. She may not seem to be striving for an effect, but she is constantly keying her appearance to her surroundings and duties and the circumstances of her individual life."

MADAME HELENA RUBINSTEIN

"Then glamour in Palm Beach, under the sun, has its own special aspects, its own characteristics?" Madame Rubinstein was asked. Her answer was immediately affirmative and of such importance to every woman who wants to capture that elusive quality we call glamour that we are repeating it in detail.

"Because a woman loves the health-giving rays of the sun and the wonderful relaxation it brings to a tired body, why must she pay with an aging, weather-beaten, dried-out skin?" Madame Rubinstein queried. "Glamour in any climate begins with a clear skin, and the woman whose face is turned to the sun needs only to give her skin protection. Whether she tans or not is of little importance—it's how she tans or stays fair that matters."

She went on to say that South American women, wherever she visited, spoke of the beauty of our American women and asked her the secret of that vital, youthful energy that so many of us carry into the years long past middle life.

As always, she stated her four beauty commandments: daily care of the skin, but regularly—no matter how simple the night and morning beauty routine, it must be followed regularly to bring results. Systematic exercises for the body and careful attention to posture and special corrective exercises. A diet that includes a large proportion of fresh fruits and vegetables and their juices. And that all-important variety of interests and enthusiasms to keep the mind alert and the soul alive.

If you've brought a tired winter face into the sun, don't think the sun alone can woo it back to vitality, Madame Rubinstein warned. "Glamour under the sun means altering your daily beauty regimen to meet the altered climatic conditions." Your first beauty step is a vitalizing one. Your skin needs stimulation. Put away your inactive cleansing creams, your soothing lotions. Use Herbal cleansing cream, that stimulates as it cleans, drawing away fatigue and strain and dryness. Continue its stimulation with Youthifying stimulant that you can actually feel whipping up the circulation. Then, at night, to take away the last traces of dryness, finish with a rich Youthifying tissue cream.

Morning protective treatment is tremendously important for the skin that will face the sun most of the day. Madame Rubinstein said she realized the need of a proper morning treatment more than ever in South America, where she saw such wonderful results in women who were careful not to overlook a morning treatment, however simple and short. "So many women think that glamour is a quality that belongs only to cocktail time and evening," she often says. "But glamour is of no time of day, no particular occasion. If a woman hasn't glamour in the morning she will find it difficult to don it at night, as she would a formal gown. There may be a morning glamour, and an evening glamour, but they are both compounded of the same basic elements."

She pointed out, too, that what you do for your beauty in the morning has its lasting effects that go on and on. A morning treatment with skin clearing cream will not only wake up your face to new radiance for the early hours of the day, but all the sallowness and dullness that might be mounting up as an enemy to beauty, the little blemishes that might have made their appearance are warded off. Furthermore you'll be sure to keep the yellow, sallow cast out of your tan. A few moments given to the application of anti-wrinkle lotion before you go out in the morning, will bring benefits that will be apparent all day and all the days to come.

"It isn't the occasional important treatment that is responsible for glamour," Madame Rubinstein points out. The cumulative effect of daily care, the regular use of truly scientific preparations, the awareness of the body's need for exercise and right diet—these are the things that have made women beautiful and healthy and glamorous. Coupled always, of course, with a receptive youthful attitude of mind that finds boredom impossible because 'the world is so full of a number of things'."

The covered shoulders, the new inky colors, the muffled elegance of this fall's fashions all conspire to highlight a shining head. And to spotlight a drab one! Every single strand of hair must gleam with a life of its own ... must make your whole burnished head glow above the stained-glass colors of your new autumn outfit. Your hair daren't be drab, dispirited or flecked with gray. Your hair simply must be young-looking, whatever the calendar's decree! And it will ... with Clairol's famous 3-fold method of shampooing, reconditioning, tinting. Insist on Clairol at your hair-dresser's.

CARTA BLANCAIMPORTED BEER

Here's old Mexico's most popular brew—a pilsner-type beer, smooth and creamy, delicate of bouquet, properly aged in vats by one of the world's largest breweries. IT'S SWEEPING THE COUNTRY! The favorite of Sunny California's smart night spots and movie colonies. An overwhelming success in New York at "21," the Stork Club and El Morocco.

BODEGAS BILBAINAS, S. A.

In every civilized nation of the world, Spanish Rioja wines are regarded as true aristocrats, prized by every lover of fine beverages. The wines of Bodegas Bilbainas will still be a favorite after even the most critical comparisons.

JOSE ROMERO P. GIL

Founded 1798. A unique assortment of sherries, noted for their outstanding bouquet, aroma and brilliance. Ask for the delicate, dry "FINO BALBAINA"

★★★ HENNESSY COGNAC BRANDY

★ QUALITY
★ BOUQUET
★ CLEAN TASTE

Mr. Tony Weller and Sam settle an estate and have some brandy.

The appreciation of really fine things is timeless. When Dickens' Sam Weller and his Pickwick Papers companions first tickled the risibilities of appreciative booklovers, Hennessy Cognac Brandy was . . . and long had been . . . the preferred after-dinner liqueur. Discriminating moderns further enjoy the quality, bouquet and "clean" taste of Three-Star Hennessy in Hennessy-and-soda and a host of delightful mixed drinks.

Trust Service In Florida

To those winter residents who have acquired property in Florida and are considering the advantages which may result from establishing their domicile in Florida, may we suggest consultations with Florida counsel who in turn will find us ever ready to co-operate in all fiduciary matters. There may also be a distinct advantage in now providing for the care and final disposition that is to be made of such property.

The facilities of this institution, designed to assure the efficient management and care of the property of its clients, are backed by years of experience in the administration of trusts involving property located throughout the State of Florida.

Those faced with the care, management, or preservation of property are cordially invited to confer with our executives.

Palm Beach Tradition---The Beach Club

CLOSELY linked with the Palm Beach tradition, and rich in memories of gala days of other years, is the Beach Club, exclusive and internationally known gathering place of smart resorters. Figuring prominently in the development of Palm Beach into a world famous winter resort is the owner of the Beach Club, Colonel Edward Riley Bradley, outstanding sportsman and philanthropist. Col. Bradley's name has long been associated with the pioneer groups of this renowned winter playground, which include Henry M. Flagler, Elisha N. Dimick, and Henry Ellsworth Bemis.

The history of the Beach Club dates from 1895 when Col. Bradley and his brother, J. R. Bradley, started a small restaurant for the benefit of an exclusive and wealthy patronage. Since that time, the reputation of the Beach Club has exceeded the confines of the United States and is known in the far away corners of the world for its cosmopolitan atmosphere and superlative cuisine.

It is interesting to note that while the founding of the Beach Club by Col. Bradley, there was destined to take place in that section of the resort, at Main Street and Bradley Place, a rapid growth and development, the central portion of the resort changing from a swamp to a center of teeming activity during the winter season. Evidences of the famous turfman's philanthrophies are found throughout the colony, and there is scarcely a charitable or civic organization which has not benefited by Col. Bradley's generosity.

Scions of nobility, titans of industry from principal cities of the globe and internationally known social leaders entertain at the Beach Club during each season. The renowned green and white room with its luxurious carpeting of emerald green and dazzling white woodwork form a perfect background for the lovely gowns and jewels of the ladies who dine there. The annual opening of the Beach Club for dinner is always an occasion for scores of large dinner parties while the famous Buffet Froid, which opened Feb. 1, attracts numbers of luncheon parties each day.

Responsible for the delectable cuisine and rare delicacies which have made the Beach Club a paradise for gourmets is Jean Broca, master chef of international repute, whose artistically prepared viands have been featured for many years. Also a part of the tradition which is the Beach Club's, is genial John Ricco, maitre d'hotel.

Among those who have entertained at luncheon parties at the Buffet Froid this season are: Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Replogle, Mrs. Dorsey Cullen, Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler, Mrs. Clinton S. Dow, Mrs. Louis F. Stanton Bader, Mrs. Herbert E. Gale, Mrs. H. Stillson Hart, the Hon. and Mrs. Frederick M. Sackett, Prince and Princess B. G. Odescalchi, Mrs. James R. Branch, Mr. and Mrs. Munson K. Treadwell, the Marquis and Marquise d'Incesa, Mrs. Ledyard Cogswell, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Mrs. C. F. Tiers, Mrs. Albert E. Worswick, Mrs. I. Sheldon Tilney, Mrs. Walter Scott Leeds, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Thomas, Mrs. Horace Chase Stebbins, Mrs. Frank B. McQuesten, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Appleton, Mrs. John C. King, and Mrs. George Luke Mesker.

One of the most gala evenings at the Beach Club is Saturday. Each week, the cool and luxurious dining room is thronged with winter colonists and their guests who assemble there for dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Rutherford entertain frequently at the Beach Club. They recently were hosts at a large dinner party in the green and white dining room. Mr. and Mrs. David Hunt Wagstaff entertained at a dinner for twenty on one occasion and Mr. and Mrs. Eben Howes Ellison were also hosts to a large gathering of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Kennedy entertained recently in observance of Mr. Kennedy's birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scott Beck gave a dinner as did Mrs. Morgan W. Daboll. Among the scores of others who have been noted dining at the Beach Club are Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Giannini, Col. and Mrs. Robert R. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien, Mrs. Dodge Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. Aksel C. P. Wichfeld, Mr. and Mrs. William Rhinelandier Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Taylor, Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, Mrs. James P. Donahue, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Woolworth Donahue, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pargny, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Corcoran, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Mrs. Paul Healy, Mrs. Jesse Spalding, Mrs. Howard Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, Mr. Robert Sweeney and others.

This season's opening dinner marked one of the largest reservation lists in the history of the Club.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst was hostess at a dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. Eric Loder, Mr. and Mrs. Aksel C. P. Wichfeld, Mr. and Mrs. J. Jay Brien, Major Barclay Warburton and Mrs. Warburton, Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Kountze

The world renowned Beach Club, which has stood for distinction and elegance in the life of the Palm Beach colony since the days of the old Royal Poinciana.

Douglas, and Captain Alastair Mackintosh. Ambassador Joseph E. Davies and Mrs. Davies and Mr. and Mrs. Pierre L. Barbey were the guests of Mrs. George B. Wagstaff at the opening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton S. Dow entertained for Mr. and Mrs. J. Lester Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. William Russell Huntley, and Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Whitehead. Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Henderson were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell and Mr. and Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau.

Mr. James H. R. Cromwell, United States Minister to Canada, entertained at a dinner at the Beach Club opening, as did Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ittleson. In Mrs. Dodge Sloane's party were Mrs. Potter Bourne and Mr. Robert Ogden Bacon.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Lear Black, Jr., were among guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Kaufman. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Leeds gave a dinner party for ten. Mrs. Joseph F. Moran was hostess at a dinner, as was Mrs. Dorsey Cullen.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ira F. Warner at the opening dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. John Peck, Mr. and Mrs. David Bend, and Mr. Melville Moffet. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Feltman and Mrs. Ethel Petinot were guests of Mr. Leonard Mohill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas had a dinner party at the opening. Others entertaining included Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Gayle Rosson, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury, Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Schmidt, Col. and Mrs. Frederick Housman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. William Voorhis Swords, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Thurber, Mr. Frank W. Gay, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Goodman, Mr. Stewart McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. King

Royal, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Warren Spear, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Gouled, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Rauh.

Another important event of the season for Beach Club patrons was the opening of the Buffet Froid. Superlative hors d'oeuvre sea foods of endless varieties, molds, cuts, and roasts, beautifully embellished in flower and vegetable motifs were arrayed in splendor on the buffet table. In keeping with the true tradition of the Buffet Froid were the fascinating and artistically conceived decorations of pastel spun sugars. Featuring the opening was the introduction of a new song played by the Beach Club orchestra and written by two of its members, Samuel Brodtkin, director, and Bernard Edison. "When It's Orange Blossom Time in Palm Beach," is the title of the composition and it promises to become a popular hit.

Among those who were hosts at the opening were: the Hon. and Mrs. Frederick M. Sackett. The Prince and Princess Balthasar G. Odescalchi were the guests of Mr. James Burns. Mrs. Joseph F. Cocoran entertained Mrs. Henry S. Moody and Mrs. John Drake at the opening. Mrs. Lewis Morris, Mr. W. G. Minner, Mr. Richard Shaw, Mrs. Edith Lauder, Mrs. R. G. Scarborough, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Block were among others entertaining. Mrs. Charles Henry Hamilton and Miss Josephine C. Kelly were hostess at a luncheon party at the Beach Club recently in honor of Mrs. Henry King Browning, and Mrs. Charles C. Brace.

Col. Owen Kenan recently entertained friends at a Beach Club luncheon. Mrs. H. T. Webster gave a luncheon that day as did Dr. Irwin Feisler and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stern. Mrs. Thomas A. Baldrige also entertained that evening.

Palm Beach Has Distinctive Visitor in "Seeing Eye Dog"

PALM BEACH has a new and distinctive visitor this season, with the world famous resort literally "putting on dog;" for the newcomer is none other than one of the renowned "Seeing Eye Dogs," a German Boxer named Blitzen, one of those miraculous dogs, chosen for their intelligence and good disposition, who have been put through an intensive training to act as a pair of eyes for their masters.

Miss Edith Carolyn Newlin, one of the resort's most popular members, who is the sister of Mrs. Peyton Van Rensselaer of Palm Beach and Newport, is the proud owner of Blitzen, who is one of the most beautiful of this type of dog and the last word in canine efficiency. In her care-free jaunts about Palm Beach in the company of her "Seeing Eye Dog" Miss Newlin has heard many comments that show how little is generally known about the Seeing Eye. To this lovely lady the subject of these dogs seems a story thrilling beyond the realization of those who have been blessed with perfect eyesight, and one worthy of a better understanding.

According to Miss Newlin, each one of these marvelous dogs is trained according to its special need, but the general principle is that of correction and reward; this principle continuing all through the dog's life of service. A fascinating saga indeed is the life story of the Seeing Eye Dog from the moment it enters the service of this organization at the age of fourteen months.

Little thought is given to the fact that these amazing dogs actually renounce their rights as carefree members of the canine world and literally dedicate their lives to the service of their masters. They are not even allowed so much as a tiny bark during their apprenticeship and in the entire period that they put in as intelligent, thoughtful and affectionate guides to their masters, forego all the romping and playing that is a natural part of every dog's life, to set an example of devotion and immolation that is a heart-warming lesson in unselfishness to the world.

These dogs become not only eyes for their visually handicapped masters but they may be said to actually become a very considerable part of their mind and heart as well; making decisions in the face of danger that often save their master's life and showing an amazing foresight in their daily role as Seeing Eyes. They guide their masters around overhead obstacles that would strike their charges, even though they themselves (the Seeing Eye Dog) could walk under the obstacle without any trouble, and perform so many similar acts that call for an unusual degree of intelligence, that it is little wonder that their masters come to feel that these dogs are almost human.

It is of interest to note that one does not go into a kennel or pet-shop to purchase a Seeing-Eye dog. The dog is trained intensively for three months before it sees its new master, and the prospective owner undergoes a month of the most intensive training with the dog from six in the morning until bed-time each day. The dog is trained in three stages: obedience, guidance and "Wilful Disobedience In The Face Of Danger." One of the most arduous months in the lifetime of any person is put in by the new owner of a Seeing Eye Dog, in order that they may become an absolutely synchronized working unit. During this month they and their new eyes enter into a partnership that is dissolved only by death.

As is their right, Seeing Eye Dogs are allowed everywhere. They ride free on planes, trains, busses, trolleys and are allowed in hotels and restaurants, churches, and moving picture theatres, where other dogs are not allowed, because it is recognized that they safeguard the lives of their master, and for any thoughtless person to forbid their entrance with their masters, would be to say in effect, "Come by all means, but leave your eyes at home."

A "Seeing Eye" dog does not have to be on familiar ground to be of service to its master. It obeys the commands, "Forward," "Right" and "Left" wherever it finds itself and overcomes whatever problems of traffic and barrier it may meet, with a sagacity and courage that make it a never ending thrill to its master, whom they actually liberate for life from fear and strain.

The training and treatment at the Seeing Eye School is absolutely impartial, and the students go home with far more than their dog and their freedom. They go home with a new independence; a new lease on life, with their chins up and their heart filled with courage and newborn hope. The change in students, who have a dire need for new eyes and most important, a new hope, is almost miraculous, and is a living testimonial to the wonderful work being done each day at the "Seeing Eye in Morristown, New Jersey."

The difference between the cost and delivery of a "Seeing Eye" dog is met through annual subscriptions.

MISS EDITH CAROLYN NEWLIN, AND BLITZEN

These dogs have transformed night into day for thousands of the blind.

Do You Remember When

CLEMATIS Street in West Palm Beach was shelled its entire length (from Poinsettia to Narcissus) by Henry M. Flagler? Almost everything was tents, in which sometimes there would live two or three families or anywhere from two to ten men when it was decided to build the Royal Poinciana?

That it was the summer of 1894 certain streets in the main portion of West Palm Beach were shelled at Mr. Flagler's expense?

That the summer of 1894 was all work and no talk; it was action and that on a grand scale, one enterprise begetting another and the magical spirit of development over all?

There were two good hotels in Palm Beach just before the opening of the Royal Poinciana, the Lake Worth by Capt.

The former Royal Poinciana Gardens, showing the main entrance with its green lawns and broad sun porch walk.

H. P. Dye, at the Lake Worth Postoffice (on the lake just below the Cragin place) the Cocoanut Grove Hotel, owned by Captain E. N. Dimick, and the Dellmore Cottage, owned by Mrs. R. B. Moore, with telegraphic facilities at both the former?

When people first commenced to come to the Lake section, the trip was an undertaking not always fraught with pleasure. It was made by sail from Titusville, there being no steamers on the Indian River at that time and the railway only came south as far as Melbourne.

Some of the first visitors to the lake section were hunters and fishermen who would come on a cruise to Jupiter and once in a while venturing over to the lake. This was the beginning of the lake settlement. They came—saw and were conquered.

The very first settlement was made by the government establishing the Light House at Jupiter in 1860. During the civil war discontinued and resumed in 1866. For a long time the keepers were the only white residents of this portion of the country, a lonely vigil.

That all coastwise vessels when bound south came close enough to our shores to be signaled and the name taken. This was telegraphed to the New York Maritime Exchange?

That for years Sewall's Point, on the Indian River was the most northerly Postoffice and is almost on the line between Dade and Broward Counties?

The completion of the East Coast Railway to the Lake in 1894 and the incomplete portion of the canal between Jupiter and Lake Worth made travel so light on the river that the Indian River steamboat company gave up business?

That in 1896 Hobe Sound had twenty-five families—quite a number of whom were English. The principal industry was pineapple culture?

That the United States Signal Service and Life Saving station was established at Jupiter in 1884?

About 1890 the county seat was moved from Miami to Juno?

The adventurer's dream of a tropical paradise is beautiful Sandy Cay, with its graceful palms and coral beaches. This lovely isle, which is within sight of Nassau, has been the inspiration for many outstanding water colors by famous artists.

Nassau Jewel of the Coral Isles

SPARKLING under a tropical sun like the central link in a gorgeous string of coral jewels, Nassau, most colorful of the Bahamian atolls, is agleam with a luster formed by the social activities of the gayest crowd of international socialites to visit these historic isles for many seasons.

From the polished decks of smartly appointed yachts that lie at anchor in picturesque Nassau harbour and the gently rolling after-decks of sea-going schooners, that carry the bronzed resorter out to beautiful tropical islets, Nassau's translucent waters are dotted with pleasure craft.

Included among the fleet of beautiful sea-going yachts at anchor in Nassau harbour, from whence many parties in the colony evolve, is the "Marmot," Mr. and Mrs. Lamont DuPont Jr.'s beautiful boat. The DuPonts have entertained for a number of guests aboard the "Marmot" this season. Members of their yachting party at present are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown.

Mr. Gerald Groesbeck of New York, who has chartered the "Nimrif," is in Nassau, and has among his guests, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Duckworth and Miss Christine Harris of Coral Gables, Florida. Anchored nearby is the "Asilikit" of New York in command of Charles Johnson and the "Three Daggers" of New York, captained by Alfred Hubbard.

Among other beautiful yachts in Nassau harbour at present are the "Pegasus" with its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hemphill of New York; the "Alma," which is chartered by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Walby of Suffolk, L. I., and has aboard her their guest, Mr. W. A. Alderman of Hampton Ways, L. I.; the cruiser "Three Daggers," owned by Mrs. Paul Gardner of Westbury, L. I.; the yacht "Hi-ball," and its owner, Mr. James Wall of New York; and many others, including of course the palatial boat of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Wenner-Gren.

Mr. Frazier Jelke of New York, Palm Beach and Nassau, entertained aboard his yacht "Libra 2nd" recently and wound up a perfect day with a cruise to Sandy Cay, where he and his guests enjoyed a picnic luncheon and swimming about in the crystal clear waters off this idyllic isle. Among his guests were Lady Williams Taylor and her grand-daughter, Miss Brenda Diana Frazier, Mrs. Philip Gossler, Miss Marian Oates, (Ship-Wreck) John S. Kelly, Mr. Hyatt von Dehn, Mr. Frederick Sigrist, Mr. Charles Patterson and others.

Innumerable excursions to nearby Rose Island, Sandy Cay and other beautiful Bahamian atolls left the dock of the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel this past week; among them boating parties headed by Mr. John E. Hutton of London, England, Mr. and Mrs. F. de Peyster Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy, well known members of the social set in Nassau, Miss Brenda Frazier, Mr. and Mrs. Newell Kelly, the Hon. A. K. Solomon, Col. and Mrs. F. Wanklyn and many others.

On a recent Saturday night, the Jungle Club, Nassau's famous after dark gathering spot, teemed with life and color, with many members of the cosmopolitan throng in gay Nassau enjoying the music of Jack Coe and the atmosphere of gay camaraderie that are among the many attractions at this night club.

Among the many interesting parties noted was Mr. and Mrs. George Murphy's party for Sir Harry and Lady Oakes, Sir Frederick and Lady Williams Taylor, the Honorable A. K. Solomon, Mrs. Harcourt Malcolm, the American Consul and Mrs. J. Dye, Miss Brenda Diana Duff Frazier, Fashionable Hog Island and the translucent waters of the harbour are seen through a peaceful tropical garden on the edge of the sea in Nassau.

Mrs. Karl M. Mann of Montclair, New Jersey, had as her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Van Vleck of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Flynn, of Pelham Manor, New York, Mr. and Mrs. Paul O'Connell of Worcester, Mass., Mr. Frank McLoughlin of Toronto, Canada, Miss Joan McLoughlin, and Dr. and Mrs. Welles Standish of West Hartford, Conn.

Mr. J. Balfour had several in his interesting party. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Randolph Carey were hosts to a small party. Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Guipe entertained. Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy came in with an interesting group.

One of the most interesting parties included Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Odman, Col. and Mrs. Frederick Wanklyn, Baron Trolle, Mrs. Dorothy Way, Miss Marian Oates, Mr. Richard Parke, Mr. Charles Patterson and others. Mr. and Mrs. Brice Pinder were hosts to Mr. John S. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Dresser, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Sheldon Bassett, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Johnson, Mrs. Harry Frank and the Marquis Visdelou.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hotton had among their guests, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Phelps, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Pratt had in their party, Mrs. George DuPont Pratt. Among other entertaining were, Mr. William J. Morrissey, Mr. W. G. Bryant, Miss Eileen Saunders, the Hon. Ralph G. Collins and others.

Squash is having a revival this year in Nassau, with many of the leading amateurs in this field participating in the tourneys held at the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel. The Squash Courts at this distinctive hostelry and the numerous other sports setting have been teeming with life and interest this season.

Mrs. Dana Steele, top-ranking Squash Racquet champion of Massachusetts, played in the mixed doubles match recently at the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel, with a large gallery comprised of guests of the Montagu and residents of the cottage colony witnessing the games.

Noted among the spectators were the Hon. O. Bancroft and Mrs. Bancroft, Hon. R. G. Collins, Mr. Arthur Hay, Mr. W. Templeton, Mr. and Mrs. W. Burt, Mrs. J. N. Feeny, Mrs. S. Stauffen, Mr. B. TROPICAL SARTORIAL SKETCHES

MR. GEORGE EDWARD KENT
Takes time off from polo at Phipps Field to make the rounds on Worth Avenue.

MR. ROBERT SWEENEY
Former British Amateur golfing champion, introduces the English golfing wristlet to the Palm Beach sartorial parade.

A sketch in time saves nine versions of what Mr. Sportsman-Socialite wore on the occasion when his raiment caused controversial comment among his friends . . . (and his non-well-wishers) . . . to put it politely. So, to settle all arguments as to whether or not Mr. Robert Sweeney, former British Amateur Champion, really wore wristlets on his recent round of golf with Miss Grace Amory, the camera stylist shows you that he really did.

Golfing wristlets being an old English custom, Mr. Sweeney was perfectly "au fait." With his fuzzy fragments, that can truly be said to be neither gloves, cuffs nor sleeves. Sad to say, one of Palm Beach's rare cold days was responsible for the introduction of this chill-weather golfing adjunct, and we'll wager that Bob's friends would have been glad to borrow them on this particular day.

A beautiful jersey sweater in Royal Blue and trousers of shetland wool in a deep grey were worn with the wristlets. Mr. Sweeney's shoes are Mexican Hauraches in black.

Mr. George Edward Kent evidently fears neither cameraman nor the dazzling sun as he strolls down Worth Avenue attired in gabardine and tropical worsted, with his sun glasses sheltering an infinitesimal portion of the sidewalk from the glare of the sun and his beautiful Basque sport shirt buttoned up at the neck to aid in forming a picture of well dressed informality.

His gabardine sports coat is in the popular blue-gray, his shirt striped in two-tones of blue and his collar in navy blue. A deeper tone of grey in the trousers and comfortable slack shoes finish off a picture of dressy ease. Mr. Kent is carrying his lovely wife's vanity in his right hand coat pocket and is on his way at the moment to meet the lady at one of Worth Avenue's smart shops.

No one will blame Mr. C. Mathews Dick for that broad smile he is displaying in the picture on these pages. The tall broad shouldered resorter knows that he is sartorially perfect from the carnation in his lapel to his smart brown buckle shoes.

A beautifully tailored tweed sports coat in graduating shades of grey, one of the new and popular gabardine slack shirts in navy blue, pleated flannel trousers that complement both coat and shoes, and we mustn't forget that gorgeous white carnation in the lapel of Mr. Dick's coat.

Outstanding in Mr. Nicholas Holmsen's sports-wear are the unusual blue bucko shoes with silver buckles that are worn with dark worsted trousers and gabardine sports coat. Mr. Holmsen is wearing a linen sports shirt that can be used with or without a tie.

Mr. Luis Martinez de las Rivas is equally at home in dashing tastefully hued sports wear or in formal garb, and manages to be distinctive in either. Glimpsed recently with a gay party at the Alibi Mr. de las Rivas was wearing a linen sports coat of pastel green, with contrasting trousers in russet brown. His neckerchief was of silk in a beautiful deep shade of Vandyke brown.

Prince Mikhail Goundoroff must be listed with the well dressed men in the colony and is partial to steel grey in his resort habiliments. A striking sports coat in this shade with blue linen trousers and steel grey bucko shoes were worn by Prince Mikhail recently on one of his tours of Worth Avenue. A satin muffler of steel grey was the piece de resistance to a tastefully selected ensemble.

Mr. Paul Bancroft goes in for beautiful sports coats, numbering among his fine collection a tweed coat in plaid of varying shades of green.

Mr. J. Gordon Douglas, amateur golfer of note, and globe trotter of distinction, who has played practically every fine golf course in the world, favors green also in his sports ensembles. Glimpsed recently on Worth Avenue Mr. Douglas was attired in a gorgeous green linen shirt of pastel pistachio, a sports coat in checks of chartreuse and chrome green, trousers of russet brown and brown bucko shoes.

It didn't take Mr. Laurens Hamilton of Bar Harbor and Palm Beach very long to join the caravan of informally dressed masculine resorters, starting out very cautiously in his first week with a smart gabardine slack suit in blue worn with a heavier material gabardine sports coat in a lighter shade of grey and seen recently at Newell Tilton's with a gorgeous shetland wool jib coat in royal blue, navy blue gabardine sports shirt, open at the throat and tropical worsted trousers in light grey.

Prince Alexis Obolensky is always good for an ocular treat, sartorially speaking, with the popular socialite being seen the other day on the Everglades Golf Course garbed in an interesting corduroy sports coat in ashes of roses color, worn with venetian red trousers in a rough texture of linen, with monk's shoes of copper colored bucko.

Mr. Tito Guizar, a recent visitor to Palm Beach, outcolored most of the resident resorters during his stay here, appearing at various gathering spots after dark clad in rose colored evening trousers and a gorgeous ashes of roses cummerbund. Glimpsed at the Pelican at an interesting dinner party Mr. Guizar had the veterans of the sartorial parade in Palm Beach gasping with envy, with his pastel pink formal tux coat and deep Venetian red trousers with a deep-series of sartorial sketches, but satin stripe.

Mr. Peppe D'Albrow made a triumphal entry into the Patio recently gorgeously arrayed in a sports coat of plaid that sported most of the sartorial rainbow. The new resort shade of Cyclamen pink predominated in his beautiful plaid coat, and various shades of brown and yellow blended admirably into a magnificent pattern. A deep russet sports shirt and brown sports shoes finished off a veritable Florida sunset of colors on this popular resort.

It seems repetitive to bring up the subject of Mr. C. Mathew Dick again in this series of sartorial sketches, but lest we forget his formal wear

MR. WINSTON GUEST
International polo star and this season's sensation on the tennis courts, is a picture of brozed virility in his knitted jersey polo shirt and white linen trousers.

Mr. Glover was wearing a checked sports coat in russet and cream, a peach colored scarf worn over a Basque shirt in stripes of varying shades of rose, and trousers of dark brown tropical worsted.

Linens are favored by Mr. Stuyvesant LeRoy, who obviously owns an interesting and diversified wardrobe in various colors and weaves of this popular resort cloth. On a recent stroll down Worth Avenue, Mr. LeRoy was wearing a beautiful contrasting combination in linen slacks, with the shirt-jacket of ashes of rose and the trousers in deep russet. Bucko brown shoes were worn with this smart outfit.

The virile Mr. John M. L. Rutherford, always seems to smack of the quarter-deck, with his tastes running to nautical designs in sports coats and comfortable, picturesque slack ensembles.

glimpsed on a recent after dark jaunt to the island's popular gathering spots; the bronzed resorter was wearing a six-inch wide sash of black satin to give the men's stylists something to think about, giving his light weight tropical worsted black tux a surprising dash and elan with its gleaming broad expanse. An extra large and flowing formal bow tie was another of the ruggedly individualistic touches given his formal wear by the popular Mr. Dick.

While Mr. Herbert Pulitzer leans toward conservatism even his resort raiment, the popular resorter and internationally known publisher is always fittingly garbed for a round of golf, a cruise on Southern waters or a stroll down Worth Avenue. Mr. Pulitzer was glimpsed recently on the Everglades Club's golf course in a polo shirt of navy blue, buttoned at the throat and pleated grey flannel trousers. His shoes were of sports design but were colored in the conventional black.

Seen on the same day at the course, Prince Alexis Obolensky was attired in a cyclamen pink sports shirt worn outside a pair of russet colored tropical worsted trousers.

Colonel Wade Hampton Carpenter was another interesting sartorial picture on this day, when glimpsed with his sports habiliments consisting of a beautiful suede jacket in beige color, worn with peach colored linen trousers.

Mr. G. Horton Glover can be depended on for at least one sartorial thrill a season. Seen recently in a golf foursome

GEORGE PLATT LYNES

Lovely from any angle is this tiny-waisted Nattier brocade, one of the many charming Henri Bendel Originals being worn at metropolitan social functions this winter.

Tastes and Toilettes

TRENDS:—American play clothes are leading the fashions at present . . . and they are most important for resort wear . . . Whether you are an active participant in a brisk game of tennis or whether you prefer to lounge idly by, enjoying the sense of freedom and exhilaration that picturesque play clothes give. Your choice may be a back-to-play times dress, a little-girl affair which has matching pants under its short full skirt, a full shirred bodice with little puff sleeves . . . you may wear a welter of stripes gathered onto a one piece waistband on a very full skirt . . . or you may adhere to the new suspender motif which lifts a starched skirt and shorts and is very effective.

It is natural during these days of crisis that American fashions should become leaders . . . not that they aren't already . . . but we are more Americanized than ever in our fashions and detailings while our designers are names which have been sweeping the country with their individuality and clever workmanship, names that mean much to the world of creators.

We are still curious over the spring silhouette . . . some new spring collections emphasize the T shape . . . wide, straight lined shoulders and the illusion of pencil slimness for the body . . . with this idea in mind the shoulders are emphasized by yokes . . . or perhaps smocking and embroidery or raglan sleeves . . . The waistline area is lengthened giving a feeling of slenderness without a sharp nipping in.

Various social functions in the past weeks have brought forth a galaxy of fashions . . . both in daytime and evening clothes . . . Valentine's Day marked an unusual assortment of red and white gowns and red and white corsages worn by winter colonists. Mrs. William Robertson looked as though she had stepped forth from an old fashioned lace valentine engraving, as she danced at The Breakers on the holiday . . . her gown was a lovely and fragile pinkish violet with tiers of bouffant ruffles . . . the décolletage was off the shoulder and a flower in her hair matched the color of the gown.

Mrs. Clifford Lilley wore a smart light cyclamen and blue gown of crepe in the pencil silhouette and topped with a fluffy fox bolero at the opening of "Pinocchio" . . . Miss Clara May Gibson's gown recently was a soft black marquisette with shoestring straps and a matching headdress of marquisette—two sparkling clips of eagles made bright decoration.

Mrs. Charlton Yarnell wears a gorgeous creation of chiffon in the slim silhouette which has lovely powder blue print flowers outlined with sequins . . . At the Chambord recently Mrs. Ritchey Farrell's gown was interestingly shaded from soft flesh colored marquisette on the bodice to the tiers of rose color on the bouffant skirt . . . her jacket was a silver fox bolero.

Mrs. Henry Morgan Tilford and her daughter, Mrs. David Wagstaff, were noted entering the theater recently . . . Mrs. Tilford's evening coat was a full length black velvet with white fox collar . . . Mrs. Wagstaff's gown was a deep fuschia lace made in straight silhouette with flared skirt.

Mrs. Maurice Fatio's gown at the opening of "Pinocchio" was a crisp black and white checked taffeta with full skirt . . . over it she wore a short sable jacket . . . Mrs. J. S. Bull tops a lovely royal blue jersey gown which has a knit jacket striped with shimmering sequins, with a natural lynx jacket.

Mrs. Joseph Kirk Love's gown at The Breakers was a soft periwinkle blue net embellished with blue sequins . . . Mrs. A. W. Foreman wears a white alençon lace gown, which has an interesting detailing of a peplum . . . a bunch of lovely artificial violets add striking color.

A very smart dinner gown of white and black crepe trimmed with white and red bugle beads was worn by Mrs. James Howell of Boca Raton at a social function recently . . . Mrs. Harold Whitmore's gown was a cyclamen chiffon embroidered in gold beads and topped by a short bolero also embroidered in the gold beads . . . Mrs. Fred Gore's white satin gown was topped by white fox.

Classic sportswear continues to hold the spotlight for daytime in Palm Beach . . . that is, daytime spectating . . . slacks, it seems, are definitely here to stay and are found in all sorts of versions although the gathered full skirts for casual wear are among the season's great favorites.

Mrs. Edward Townsend, Jr., wears a sleek white shark-skin dress under a knitted boucle sweater made in cardigan style with short sleeves . . . Mrs. Fontaine LeMaistre's casual costume recently was a gathered very full skirt with a striped blouse with long sleeves.

Mrs. C. Egerton Warburton's periwinkle blue gown of flowing chiffon was worn with a short mink coat at one of the popular Sunday evening movies . . . Miss Helen Morgan's chiffon gown at The Breakers was cleverly panelled with hues of green and peach . . . over the gown she wore a full length wool evening coat, fitted, and effective with bright gold buttons . . . on white.

Distinction Marks Social Season at The Everglades Club

FROM the moment the picturesque wrought iron doors that guard the portals of the Everglades Club swung open to officially greet the opening night crowd on News Year's Eve, until this writing, this exclusive gathering spot has been fairly scintillating with brilliant social functions. Regardless of how interesting and well attended each of the early season affairs were at the club, each succeeding social function continues to establish a new record in attendance and a new high in entertainment.

Not content to rest upon their laurels as the guiding lights of the island's most beautiful and distinctive club, the Board of Governors and their President, Mr. Hugh Dillman, have made this exclusive gathering spot so attractive that as the highlight of the social season in Palm Beach.

Screaming calliopes, a circus parade down Worth Avenue with the colony's leading socialites joining in the fun by participating as circus principals, an enormous elephant, zebras, and a veritable menagerie of animals under the big top formed the entertainment program for this season's Washington Birthday party at the Everglades Club.

The club was fantastically decorated to simulate the grounds of a circus, with the Orange Gardens transformed into a circus mid-way. Peeping-shows, side shows, and all the gamut of a day at the circus was included in the socialite's version of the Big Top.

A glance at the list of guests at the Everglades Club on Washington's Birthday was equivalent to riffling the pages of the Social Register, starting with John Jacob Astor and winding up with the Blaine Zuvers, and a phalanx of prominent names sandwiched between.

For the Blue and White Ball the entrance of the club was transformed into a snow blanketed forest to simulate the bleak wastes of northern Finland. Everything from life-like timber wolves to a variety of amazingly real animals of the arctic regions were found lurking behind snow banks that were so convincing that one could easily imagine that the icicles on the ceiling and the snow covered trees were genuine.

Several minor miracles in overnight transformation were sandwiched in between the Blue and White Ball and the carnival night held on Washington's Birthday Ball at the Everglades Club. For the February 22nd gala the talent at the club really went to work, with the club grounds a veritable circus mid-way. Everything except Jo-Jo the dog-faced boy and the calf with two heads was utilized in putting the smart set into the proper frame of mind to enjoy the carnival to outdazzle all carnivals at the Everglades Club on this night.

The return to health of Mr. Hugh Dillman, popular President of the Everglades Club and active worker in every worth-while humanitarian venture in Palm Beach, this and other seasons, is considered by the members of the club, to be primarily responsible for the brilliance of this year's social functions at the club. Long noted as an indefatigable worker in the field of social and civic affairs on the island, this year has found the distinguished leader heading the most impressive series of social functions and civic drives held in the colony in some years.

Overshadowing even the social success of the Blue and White Ball was the overwhelming success attained in raising a signal sum for the relief of the beleaguered Finns, and an equally impressive amount for direct aid to Finland's soldiers, with this important social and civic function decidedly most of the members seem to spend the majority of their waking hours there.

Through these gracious portals pass the aristocracy of two continents. The wrought iron gates that guard the entrance to the exclusive Everglades Club disclose an inviting vista of cloistered nave and tropical flowers.

Brilliance in entertainment has been the keynote at Palm Beach's social center this season. Fashion Shows comparable to the finest in Gay Paris have attracted capacity crowds each Wednesday afternoon; Tuesday nights this season have witnessed crowds of from one hundred to one hundred and fifty participating in the fascinating Backgammon Tournaments at the Everglades Club and special nights have found the lovely Orange Gardens filled to overflowing with the island's most distinguished visitors.

Many thought that anything that followed the brilliant Blue and White Ball, held at the club on February fifth as the bell-weather event of National Finnish Relief Week, would be anti-climax, only to see an even larger crowd turn out on Wednesday afternoon of the following week for the tombola.

With each social function eclipsing the last, it would seem rather presumptuous to label even the recent Washington Birthday Ball, with its record crowd and dazzling carnival not in the class of just another excuse for a social gathering.

Through Mr. Dillman's office between five thousand and six thousand dollars was raised by direct contribution and a similar sum came in as the results of a collaboration of efforts the President of the club and his distinguished Finnish Relief Committee, as well as the whole-hearted co-operation of the island's resorters. These moneys were sent directly to Mr. Hoover, national chairman of the Finnish Relief and to the Minister from Finland respectively.

Backgammon has attained the eminence of a major phase in the social life of the colony, with the Everglades Club's weekly tournaments completely revolutionizing the after dark life of the colony.

This popular game started in a modest way at the club several years ago, for the benefit of a few enthusiasts and in recent years has grown to unprecedented proportions.

Entries for the Backgammon Tournament included: Mr. and Mrs. Aksel C. P. Wichfeld, Mr. Laurens Hamilton, Mr. Nicholas Holmsen, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Wright, Mrs. Frederick Hattersley, Captain and Mrs. Cyrus Miller, Mr. J. A. Peter Strassburger, the Rajkurn of Pudukota, Prince Pignatelli, Princess Odescalchi, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Loder, Mrs. W. Earl Dodge, Mr. Clinton Sibley Dow, Mrs. Van Lear Black, Mr. Charles West, Mr. John Wemple, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Warner, Mrs. George Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Douglas, Mr. William Randolph Hearst, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Townsend, Jr., Mrs. William Russell Huntley, Mrs. Frederick Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Work, Jr., Mrs. William Rhinelanders Stewart, Mr. John A. Vietor, Mrs. Ritchey Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Alger, Mr. Woolworth Donahue, Mr. and Mrs. Conkey P. Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Reeves, Mr. Archibald McNeil, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brokaw, Miss Janet Watt.

THOSE MERRY MEN

JOHN GOLDEN

FRANK CROWNINSHIELD

RUBE GOLDBERG

THOSE merry men of brush and pen, the famed Artists' and Writers' aggregation made their presence known in no uncertain terms during their recent annual visitation to Palm Beach. Starting with the uproarious greeting at the railroad station, where they were "picketed" by the earlier arrivals, continuing through their hectic golf match and winding up with their brilliant banquet, this group of renowned personalities in the world of creative art definitely made Palm Beach their vacation headquarters for fun and frolicment, staying at the Palm Beach Biltmore.

Among those making the trip this year were, Arthur William Brown, Gene Buck, Frank Crowninshield, Owen Davis, Billy DeBeck, Albert Dorne, James Montgomery Flagg, Rube Goldberg, John Golden, Charles A. Hughes, Ray McCarthy, I. C. McElroy, Fred Nehr, James Powers, F. Newlin Price, Raymond C. Schindler, Richard L. Simon, Otto Soglow, Merle Thorpe, John N. Wheeler, C. D. Williams, as well as those already here, including Charles Francis Coe, Maurice Fatio, Ham Fisher, Sam Harris, Jackson Hines, Messmore Kendall, Hal Phylfe.

A thumbnail biography of six illustrious members of this famous group is contained in these pages.

John Golden, outstanding American playwright, and producer of plays, whose native heath is New York, itself, started his dramatic career early by making his first success in a play that ran one week under the auspices of the New York Dramatic Club.

Following this he became a super at the Harrigan Theater, followed this by playing four years in stock, repertoire and Shakespeare. He then became a comic journalist and rhymester for two years, and wandered from that to study music and took up song writing. He stuck at that long enough to write more than a thousand songs, as well as many short plays, designed scenery, costumes, and composed music for over a dozen musical comedies.

He is a Moose, and a colonel on Governor Morrow's staff of Kentucky, as well as a major in the R. O. C. and a major in the New York Police Reserves. His most successful productions were, Lightnin', which ran 1,292 consecutive performances. Turn to the Right, Susan and God.

Francis Welch, "Frank" Crowninshield, was born in Paris, but did not become an artist. Instead, after being educated at Lyons Academy he plunged into the publishing world, first bringing out The Bookman and the Metropolitan Magazine. He also became assistant editor of Munsey's Magazine, was a literary agent in London, art editor of Century Magazine.

Was editor of Vanity Fair from 1914 to 1935, now editorial advisor to Vogue with which Vanity Fair was merged and also editor of The Patrician of London. He is secretary of The Museum of Modern Art. Has contributed satirical and other articles to many magazines and also known under the none de plume of "Arthur Loring Bruce."

Reuben Lucius "Rube" Goldberg was born in sunny California in the seaport town of San Francisco, where he many magazine covers until he found his niche in the world of the camera. Had a studio at Palm Beach several years ago and may have one here again. received his education, graduating from the University of California.

Being born in California did not deter him however for he immediately became a cartoonist on the San Francisco Evening Chronicle, later went to the Bulletin.

He ignored Horace Greeley's words of wisdom and came to New York on the New York Evening Mail, later to the New York Evening Journal. The vaudeville stage attracted him for a time until he created Boob McNutt and the famous Rube Goldberg cartoons, of mechanical thingumajigs. Is a golfer.

Eugene Edward "Gene" Buck, is a Detroitter by birth, but a New Yorker by avocation, and has made a mark with a capital M in the world of song.

He studied art at the Detroit Art Academy but chose song for his career, becoming the principal librettist for the Ziegfield Follies, writing themes and songs for thirty productions.

Collaborated in an operetta with Augustus Thomas, and Mischa Elman, in comedy with Ring Lardner and in songs and lyrics with Victor Herbert, Jerome Kern, Raymond Hubbard, Rudolf Friml, and others. Has done his finest extra-curricular work as president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Composed Florida, The Moon and You. Is a Democrat.

James Montgomery Flagg, artist and author, first saw the light of day in Pelham Manor, N. Y., and was launched into an artist's career at the Art Students' League, then studied at Herkomers' Art School, Bushey, England, and also under Victor Marec in Paris, where he lived in the heyday of the left bank.

Started illustrating for Saint Nicholas magazine, and his works appeared in Judge and Life for many years, with illustrations of his adorning the covers and pages of practically every prominent magazine published in this country. Has exhibited portraits in the Paris Salon, also portraits in oil and water color at the National Academy of Design and the New York Color Club. Appointed State Military Artist for the duration of the last World War and designed 45 posters. Wrote "If,"—a Guide to Bad Manners, and The Adventures of Kitty Cobb. Is a Lotus and a Lamb, member.

Hal Phylfe, master of the camera art, who has done photographic studies of practically every person of prominence in all stratas of the social, business and professional world, not to forget the stage and radio and politics, was practically born in a dark room.

However, basic art touched him early in his career and is indicated in the portrait sketch of him by James Montgomery Flagg, on your left. Incidentally, all other portraits on this page were done by Phylfe.

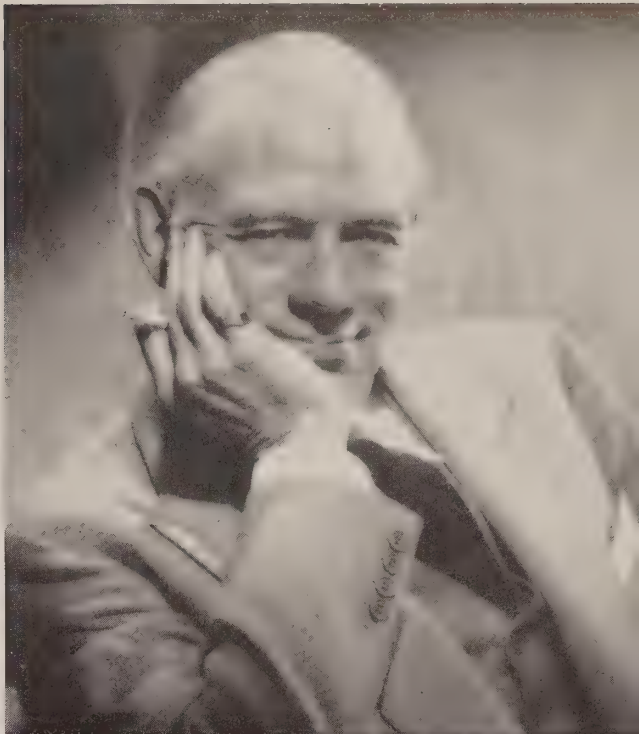

He studied sculpture in France, did pastel portraits, and many magazine covers until he found his niche in the world of the camera. Had a studio at Palm Beach several years ago and may have one here again.

Among The Palms

ONE of the most active seasons in years is now being experienced at The Breakers, where entertaining during the past few weeks has continued unabated. Formal dinner parties and interesting luncheons in the attractive circular dining room have been given by scores of members of both the hotel and cottage colonies.

Tea dances at the famous hotel, where many distinguished personages are enjoying annual sojourns, attract hundreds weekly. The smooth rhythm of Walter Miller's orchestra and the charming background of the beautiful foliage in Cocoanut Grove make that rendezvous a center of Mrs. Charles Reese and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Calhoun.

Mrs. George C. Shevlin was hostess at tea to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matrunola, Miss Theresa Matrunola and Miss Marion G. Shevlin. Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Lovering entertained guests at tea as did Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ibsen.

Mr. and Mrs. William MacNeill, of the Philadelphia colony at The Breakers, gave a cocktail party at the hotel, after which they entertained at dinner in the circular dining room. Their guests were: Mrs. Charles H. Randle, Mrs. Guy Randle, Mr. and Mrs. William White Forrester, Mr. and Mrs. William MacLain and Mr. Mario di Tullio.

Miss Dell Robertson was hostess at tea one afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Henry McSweeney, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robertson, Mr. John Wells, Misses Muriel and Beatrice Schoonmaker, Mr. George Cressaty, Mrs. John L. Robertson, Mr. Harry Jordan, Jr., Miss Cornelia Stalfort, Miss Clara Stalfort and Mrs. Robertson von Struven.

In another party at the tea dance were the Misses Shirley Bell, Joy Plummer, Patricia Gefaell, Nancy Strange, and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gefaell. Miss Strange's engagement was recently announced to Mr. John H. Gefaell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gefaell, captain of the Princeton baseball team, where he is a member of the graduating class. He will join his family at the hotel later.

Mrs. S. H. Huber and Miss Harriet Huber of Scranton, Pa., have joined Mrs. Huber's father, Mr. Charles Sumner Woolworth, for an annual visit at The Breakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Rice of La Jolla, Cal., will spend a few weeks with her father, Gen. J. Ernest Smith.

Judge James A. Leary of Saratoga Springs is spending a month here as is his annual custom, with his niece, Miss Ruth Thompson Wallace.

Joining Mr. and Mrs. George Heintzman of the Canadian colony are their daughter and granddaughter, Mrs. Goodwin Gibson and Miss Clara May Gibson of Toronto. Also joining the Canadian colony were Mr. and Mrs. J. K. McSweeney of Montreal, where Mr. McSweeney is an official of the Canadian Alliance Investment Corporation.

Season guests at the Hotel Seaglade are Captain and Mrs. Alfred B. Smith and Miss Betty Smith of Atlantic City, Mrs. Thomas B. Sutton of Larchmont, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Loring of Westwood, Massachusetts; Mr. W. R. Cole, Jr., of Nashville, Tennessee; Mrs. William D. Crawford of Norwalk, Connecticut; Mr. and Mrs. William Gilmore of Oak Park, Illinois; Miss Gertrude Henschel of New York, Mr. George B. Trepress of Glen Cove, Long Island, New York; Dr. and Mrs. John J. Moylan of Germantown, Pennsylvania.

With February providing added reason for parties with its interesting holidays, the Palm Beach Hotel is having a season of real gayety. The fun loving guests who come to the hotel each season for a winter visit are finding themselves drawn into the whirl immediately upon their arrival here and find no moments of dullness. The Valentine party held in the dining room of the hotel was a gala occasion. The attractive room was decorated with hundreds of hearts and the table coverings were in the holiday motif. A special menu carried out the theme of the party.

resort activity during the late afternoon. Evening dances, also, are occasions for innumerable parties. The open dance floor under tropical stars shares honors with the terrace.

Mrs. M. Bingham Plunkett was hostess at a large tea on the terrace. Her guests included, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Falvey, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eckert, Mr. Raymond G. Noble, Mrs. Charles Wiegand, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Candler, Mrs. Robert Beal, Col. and Mrs. John M. Gray, Mrs. Ledyard Cogswell, Mr. Fred H. Ward, Mrs. William H. Williams, Mr. Harry Skillman, Mr. Kane and Miss Kane, Mr. Henry J. Hinde, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Gayle Rosson, Mr. Harry C. Radon, Mrs. William F. Bode, Mr. George Crossaty, Mr. Tom Whitland, Mr. and Mrs. George Eddy, Mrs. Eleanor De Lalle,

The George Washington's Birthday dinner dance attracted a crowd of several hundred including guests and members of the cottage colony. Patriotic music and decorations added to the enjoyment of the party. Until the close of the season the Palm Beach Hotel will continue to arrange pleasant entertainment for its guests, including weekly dinner dances, moonlight boat rides, competitive games, contract tournaments, and recitals by well known artists.

Recent arrivals at the Palm Beach include: Mr. and Mrs. John Ansbro of Brooklyn, with their daughters, the Misses Madeline and Dolores Ansbro; Mr. and Mrs. James D. McGann, also of Brooklyn; Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Flagg and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Barry, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. William C. Merchant, Albany, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Sullivan, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Saxton, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Reid, Jr., Allenhurst, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. David Kremer, Asbury Park, N. J.; Miss Eleanor Hurley, Boston, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gilbert, Lancaster, Pa., with their daughter, Miss Betty Gilbert, and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. O'Brig, Bayport, L. I.

Mid-season finds Brazilian Court filled to capacity as well known figures in society and industry arrive there to join in the social and cultural activities for which this resort is famous. The hotel has long been a favored wintering spot for members of ultra conservative society and of the members of the international set who find time for a visit to Palm Beach during the season. Joining the fashionable colony at Brazilian Court recently were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bradley Murray of New York and Ilex House, Southampton, L. I. They were accompanied here by four of their very attractive daughters, the Misses Therese, Rosamond, Marcia and Joan Murray. The latter two are sub-debs who will make their bow to society next season. The girls are among the leaders of the young social set at Southampton, where they spend each summer with their parents. They are accomplished equestriennes who compete in the large eastern horse shows. Miss Rosamond Murray was twice winner of the Good Hands championship at the Madison Square Garden's Horse Shows.

Mrs. F. Corlies Morgan of Chestnut Hill, Pa., a leading figure in Philadelphia society, arrived at Brazilian Court with her sister and niece, Mrs. T. Truxtun Hare of Limehouse, Radnor, Pa., and Miss Martha Hare. Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Brokaw of The Chimneys, Oyster Bay, L. I., and their daughter, Miss Edna Brokaw, are at the hotel, where they have been annual visitors for many years. Another daughter, Mrs. Charles Crocker and Dr. Crocker, are residing at Gulf Stream. Mr. and Mrs. Brokaw are always actively identified with resort activities and are members of the Bath and Tennis, The Everglades and Gulf Stream Golf Clubs. Arriving on the same day were Mr. and Mrs. William Lafayette Burton, 2nd, of New York, who will remain for several weeks.

The Vineta, distinctive resort hotel, which is enjoying one of the most successful seasons in its history under the management of Mr. Ira S. Dunkle, contributes much to the mid-season activity of the resort.

Guests have been taking part in many of the delightful diversions provided for their entertainment, including frequent game intervals in the modernistic lounge, bridge parties, and the formation of groups for knitting instruction held each Friday morning in the east gardens, with the products being sent to French, British and Finnish soldiers.

Among the many guests who have chosen The Vineta for their season's stay in the resort are included, Mrs. Lawrence Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bradley of the Chicago colony at the hotel; Mr. and Mrs. William G. Oliver of Oak Park, Ill.; Dr. and Mrs. Frederic Lawrence of Carlisle, Pa.; Mrs. S. S. Pingree, St. Louis, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. John J. Daly, Boston, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tuckerman, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Greer, Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. A. Graham Shields of Attleboro, Mass.

Those of the New York colony at The Vineta include, Mrs. H. H. Spaulding, Mrs. B. Colby Carrington, Mrs. A. C. Hammitt, Mrs. John Jay, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril J. Norton, Mr. John B. Woodward, Miss Emie S. Day, Mr. A. Ivan Brickner, Miss Lillian A. Kline.

Others include, Mrs. Charles G. Agard and Mrs. John M. Brooks, Torrington, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. George H. High,

MISS BETTY LOUISE SCHEER

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto F. Scheer, whose engagement to Mr. Mason Letteau of Los Angeles, has recently been announced.

Lake Forest, Ill.; Mrs. S. J. Fitzsimons, and Mrs. L. S. Harris Detroit, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Adolph B. Hill, St. Louis, Missouri.

Among the recent arrivals at the Palm Beach Plaza is Mr. George Henry Payne of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington. Mr. Payne is also noted as an author and a lecturer.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dean also arrived a short time ago. Mrs. Dean is perhaps better known as Miss Fanny Ward, actress of both stage and screen. Miss Ward gained a reputation as an actress both here and abroad, where her debut in "The Shop Girl" endeared her to English audiences.

As to the future, Miss Ward is writing a book about her life and that of her daughter's. It will include many glimpses into the lives of other prominent people and will be published the end of the year.

This gay party alternated between beautiful Whitehall and the Miami Biltmore Hotel, with this picture showing Sir George Macdonald as the honor guest at a dinner given in the latter hostelry. Other guests are the Hon. Mrs. Calypso Liddell, Mr. Rhinelander Stewart, Mr. Gurnee Munn and Mr. T. Suffern Tailer.

WHITEHALL

THIS season finds the beautiful sky-scraper that forms Palm Beach's famous Whitehall Hotel the setting for a continuity of interesting social functions, with the lovely Jardin Royal sparkling with life and color each afternoon and the distinctive beauty of the original Flagler mansion welcoming a distinguished list of guests.

No one setting in Palm Beach so typifies the connecting link between the leisurely grace of the gay nineties and the heightened tempo of the present decade as the magnificent old mansion of the late Henry M. Flagler, which greets the incoming guest and forms such a gracious introduction to the courteous and suave service that distinguish the modern hostelry that looms above it.

Exquisite works of art, marble staircases, sculptor's creations that were the sensation of the early part of this century, magnificent murals and a veritable art collector's dream of beauty are yesterday's gracious introduction to today's distinctive offerings at beautiful Whitehall.

From the traditional beauty of the Flagler mansion to the modern magnificence of the Whitehall pent house is an interesting transition. Looming high in the sky, with all the loveliness of sparkling Lake Worth and the palm-lined shore of ocean and lake spreading out beneath it, the splendor of Whitehall's modern contribution to beauty in appointments is fully as distinctive in its twentieth century beauty as the elegance of the old mansion.

From its living room, its decks and porches one can view the beautifully groomed fairways of the island's centrally located golf course and the waters of the Atlantic ocean on the one side and from the same vantage points can look down on lovely Lake Worth and the profusion of coconut trees and tropical shrubbery that line its dimpled waters.

The Jardin Royal continues to be one of the island's most popular spots during the fashionable cocktail hour. The music of Val Olman and the dancing of the famous Arthur Murray group aid in creating an atmosphere of smart sophistication.

George Shelley, star of stage, screen and radio, Marissa, dancing star of "Mexicana," Nick Bjorn, Jean Farries and the Arthur Murray Group are providing a sterling entertainment background at beautiful Whitehall.

The "Festa delle Lanterne," a Venetian Festival of Lanterns, which was held on Saturday evening, February seventeenth, was among the outstanding social functions in Palm Beach, with dreamy old world gondolas, Venetian lanterns and the carnival atmosphere of a Venetian carnival adding to the gaiety of the scene.

Decorating the upper terrace above the Jardin Royal were lanterns of Venetian design, with these intriguingly designed lanterns hung in the foliage, wicker lounges, on the promenade and over all, the blue and silver of cellophane stars.

Venetian tri-corners and masks were worn by many of the smart set for this gay festival. At midnight an elaborate entertainment culminated in a pageant both bizarre and extravagant, depicting the exotic and romantic heroine of history was presented.

Representatives of metropolitan society from all over the country intermingle with the international set at Whitehall this season. This distinctive hostelry has welcomed through its marble portals a distinguished group of winter visitors from two continents.

Miami Beach

CELEBRATING the anniversary of the natal day of George Washington was the inspiration this week for many parties in this colony. Among affairs was the Colonial Costume Ball at the Pancoast Hotel of the younger set, with the grand march led by visitors attired as George and Martha Washington and some of their contemporaries. The Virginia Reel, the Paul Jones and Shoofly, as well as modern dances were included in the program.

Gayety ran high on last Tuesday night at the Pancoast when a gala Night Club Night was staged for the benefit of the local Community Chest. Top flight artists entertained the smart assemblage making merry at the small tables in the Levantine Lounge. Pauline Achmatova with a Czechoslovakian troupe in native costumes presented a program of folk songs and dances, and other artists were the exotic Aloha Kahimi, hula dancer; Peter Pan, who contributed whistling solos; Tattee Martin, the "mike" singer, and Marty Culhane, extraneous singer. Jerome Twichell and his Pancoast orchestra presented a special program for dancing.

Partying goes on apace at the Pancoast. Lady Eaton of Toronto has been entertained recently at the Pancoast Cabana Club by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lawson of London, Ont., in residence in their winter home in Belle Isle, Miami Beach, where Lady Eaton is their house guest . . . Mr. and Mrs. John English, Schenectady and Lake George have joined the cottage colony in this resort. They are members of the Pancoast Cabana Club and are seen here frequently with their debutante daughter, Miss Edythe English and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Du Mary of Albany, N. Y. Mrs. Du Mary will be recalled as the lovely Natalie English. They have been prominent members of this winter colony many seasons. Every day is party day for Mr. and Mrs. Matthew C. Brush, Norwalk and New York. They have given a series of parties recently, one being a cabana luncheon for Mr. and Mrs. Donald Millar of Larchmont . . . Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Brickley of Brookline entertained with dinner this week in the Mediterranean room of the Pancoast complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. O'Connell, Newton, Mass., who are wintering in their cottage in Clarke Avenue, Palm Beach, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Downs of Aigremont, Winchester, Mass., who are winter guests at The Breakers in Palm Beach . . . Mr. and Mrs. George Kremer of Pelham, N. Y., entertained with a pre-nuptial dinner party in the Mediterranean room of the hotel for Mrs. Lillian O'Reilly, New York, and Mr. Walter Reynolds of Larchmont. Their marriage will be an event in May in Miami . . . Mrs. William H. Martens, Bronxville, assisted by her daughter, Miss Jeanne Martens, entertained with dinner in the Mediterranean room of the hotel complimenting Mr. and Mrs. John Wintjen, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. . . . Mr. Howard M. Parks, Fitchburg, Mass., had as dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Gifford K. Simonds, Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Clifford, Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wallace, Fitchburg . . . Admiral and Mrs. Norman Murray Smith, Williston, S. C., gave a dinner party in honor of Commander and Mrs. Herndon B. Kelly, Annapolis, Md., who are wintering in Lake Worth, Fla. . . . Mrs. T. Frank Appleby, Asbury Park, entertained with a surprise bridge luncheon in compliment to Mrs. Mary J. Donohue, who was celebrating her birthday anniversary. Other guests were Mrs. George W. Robertson, Shamokin, Pa., Mrs. James P. Ackerman, Asbury Park and Mrs. George B. Cade, Allenhurst, N. J. . . . Colonel and Mrs. Frank Hatch, Washington, D. C., and daughter, Miss Peggy Hatch, entertained with dinner in compliment to their friend of many years' standing, Mrs. John McCormick of Pittsburgh, who motored to the Pancoast from The Breakers in Palm Beach, where she is a guest. Another day they gave a luncheon for Mrs. William A. Jones, Miami, and Mrs. Aneita Peters, Miami Beach, former Washingtonians . . . Mr. and Mrs. Justin A. Griess, Washington, D. C., entertained with dinner in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. William Knealy, Baltimore.

Many prominent resorters have augmented the winter colony this week at the Pancoast. The Honeymooning Frank G. Strachans of New Orleans arrived after air jaunting by Pan American Clipper Ship to Jamaica and Nassau. The bride is the former Miss Rose Forsyth, daughter of Mrs. William B. Forsyth of New Orleans. Their marriage was solemnized in Trinity Chapel in that city . . . A quartet of prominent Virginians composed of Mr. Mills F. Neal, Mr. James D. Patton, Mr. Anton C. Adams, and Mr. James D. Patton, Jr., all of Richmond . . . From the Gone With the Wind pulse-center have arrived former Governor John M. Slaton of Georgia and Mrs. Slaton, who make their home in Atlanta. They are here for their seasonal sojourn . . . and from nearby Newman, Ga., have arrived Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Peniston . . . and it was nice to have Mr. and Mrs. Percy Adamson, Purchase, N. Y., return to the Pancoast for another sojourn after the lapse of a season or two . . . and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Roberts, Bronxville, are here for their third annual visit and running in three's, they will stay for three weeks . . . and here again are the delightful Allan Creightons.

A truly twentieth century version of life in tropical Florida is found in this picture with its modern planes etched against a clear sky and smart sea-going yacht anchored amid a scene of tropical beauty off Miami's colorful shores.

Cottage Colony Society Life

PERHAPS Palm Beach will never quite recapture that atmosphere of leisurely living and graceful elegance that characterized the life of this colony during the halcyon days of the famous old Royal Poinciana, but to the old guard in the resort, many phases of the present season seem strikingly reminiscent of the old era of elegance.

Many of the sea-side castles built during that era are open this year for the first time in many seasons, and along the historic Lake Trail, there are traces of the social life, that flourished in the days when Mr. Joseph Riter, the Cluetts, Mrs. E. Gray Pendleton, and other notable figures of that day occupied the social limelight in Palm Beach.

Architecturally at least, the lovely old Riter estate is as interesting as in the old days, and the beautiful grounds of this property, now the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merrill of New York, are even lovelier today than in the days when Emma Eames and a host of Metropolitan artists were brought to Palm Beach by Mr. Riter to entertain his host of friends.

In driving along the County Road in Palm Beach or bicycling down the beautiful old Lake Trail, a glimpse of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill's estate doesn't even hint at the beauty and charm to be found on penetrating beyond either of the unpretentious entrances.

vivid with color and beauty. Several glass houses that shelter everything from rare orchids to a variety of tropical flowers, are filled with beautiful flowers and the grounds of the estate again resound to the gay chatter and laughter of the smart set this season, after a too long period of desertion by the owner and her family.

Another welcome addition to the life of the colony is the opening this season of the impressive Joseph E. Davies estate next door to Mrs. James P. Donahue's home. Long a showplace in the resort, this home has been shuttered for several years during the absence of the distinguished former Minister to Belgium, who is in the resort now enjoying a vacation from his new post as Assistant Secretary of State, with Mrs. Davies.

The exquisite beauty of the turreted tower, which can be seen from many vantage points in Palm Beach, looks down on a profusion of tropical flowers and shrubbery, with their rambling stone fence the most gorgeous pattern of bougainvillae imaginable. Every variety of this beautiful plant is seen on their fence, which runs in flaming glory from the ocean boulevard all the way to the placid waters of Lake Worth.

With the recent return of the distinguished Statesman and his lovely wife, their home has been ablaze with lights and the color and gaiety of a number of interesting dinner parties.

The beautiful old world villa of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury continues to rank among the island's most interesting settings. The lovely widow of the late and beloved E. T. Stotesbury, while no longer acting as hostess to the large parties that were the rule during the lifetime of her husband, has entertained for a number of close friends this season at El Mirasol.

Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen's lovely white home on Barton Avenue, which has been one of the land-marks in Palm Beach for several decades, with its trim lawn, wrought iron gate and rambling architecture, has been the background for several interesting small parties this season given by the charming wife of the late Senator Frelinghuysen.

The patrician and lovely Mrs. Frelinghuysen has never cared for lavish parties, but is known to her many friends as a gracious hostess, with a penchant for interesting and informal gatherings of close friends in her beautiful home.

Next door to the trim white house of Mrs. Frelinghuysen is the magnificent ocean front villa of the J. Jay O'Briens, which has been the setting for house parties entertaining the aristocracy of two continents for many years. This year finds Mr. J. Jay O'Brien and his orchidaceous wife entertaining for many of the social colony at Villa del Sarmiento. Mrs. O'Brien, who is often referred to as one of Palm Beach's most beautiful women, is among the most popular and ingenuous hostesses on the island. All of the charm and distinction of the early days in Palm Beach is found at the social functions given by this couple.

The name of Charles A. Munn has been a proverb in the resort for many years in the field of gracious entertaining. Mr. Munn's sea-side home, "Amado," has been known to the international set as the last word in interesting house parties. This season finds Miss Mary Munn, attractive daughter of the well known sportsman-socialite, as the hostess at many gayly informal gatherings. Miss Munn is a member of the Les Colis de Trianon Versaille, comprised of many of the colony's younger set, who have met several times at "Amado" to combine knitting for the war sufferers in Europe with enjoying the famous Munn hospitality.

Mr. Munn is among the pioneers in Palm Beach in installing a completely equipped motion picture theatre in his home for the edification of his friends and is one of the foremost dissipators of that bugaboo boredom in the social life of the colony.

"Heamaw," the lake-to-ocean estate of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, is among the island's showplaces, with Mr. Phipps, who is a noted horticulturist, specializing in propagating many rare species of orchids and other exotic members of the floral group. Their spacious gardens, beautiful patios, tennis courts, smart swimming pool and other sun-kissed settings, are resounding to the gay laughter of the younger set this season. Miss Sonia Phipps, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phipps, has had several youngsters as her house guests and every sports background from the beach to the immaculately groomed tennis courts has been alive with color and activity.

The gorgeous tropical beauty of the estate of the Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest is another Palm Beach background that has retained all of the beauty and charm of the early days in Palm Beach. The leisurely grace and dignity of yesteryear are found at this great lady's charming parties, with the colony's most interesting socialites finding their way to "Villa Artemis," her attractive home on North County Road.

MRS. AMORY CARHART

Palm Beach Winter Club

PALM BEACH's bronzed resorters have discovered a new golfing thrill in the recently opened Palm Beach Winter Club, which presents to the socialite golfer an eighteen-hole course comparable to the sportiest in the country. Originally designed by the famous golfing architects Rainor and McDonald for the late Paris Singer, the Winter Club's sparkling continuity of fairways is rated among the finest.

Ingenuity in utilizing the natural terrain and strategically placed hazards form a fascinating trial of skill for the golfing adept, with this beautiful course rambling through a picturesque setting between the sparkling wastes of the inland waterway and the tropical loveliness of Della Creek.

Just two miles south of the exclusive Seminole Golf Club, the Palm Beach Winter Club offers a welcome addition to the sports and social life of the colony. Not the least of its attractions for the smart set in Palm Beach is the distinctive club house with its sunny lounges and picturesque terraces.

Many of the resort colony have acquired the habit of phoning the Winter Club and arranging for one of their delicious luncheons served on the club's outdoor terrace or in the cocktail lounge. For the resorter who wants that added spice of something a bit different in his daily life in Palm Beach, this picturesque setting with its view overlooking one of south Florida's loveliest tropical backgrounds is the answer for the interesting cocktail or luncheon party.

A tropical invitation to the attractive course is found in the Spanish castle at upper left, with its old world architecture and interesting landscaping, spacious locker rooms, attractive lounges built to overlook the course and the sparkling waters of the lake, the inland waterway and Della Creek. This lovely club house is considered one of Mizner's finest architectural gems, and was built in the heyday of the famous Paris Singer.

Overlooking the first tee and the putting green, the cocktail lounge, with its striking view of the course and the lake, is the ideal setting for a rainy day, with the club's terrace and its gay colored umbrellas, an attractive background for cocktail and luncheon parties on sunny days.

Many of the social colony in Palm Beach have availed themselves of the weekly, monthly or seasonal cards offered by the Palm Beach Winter Club, which is run on a greens fee basis. The club has no membership, but is open to the members of the various clubs in Palm Beach. Lake Park 3081, the telephone number of the Winter Club, is proving a popular number with the resort's fine golfers these days, many of whom call in their orders for luncheon before leaving home for a round of golf.

The club house has been completely redecorated and the interesting golf course brought up to a splendid standard under the supervision of Sir Harry Oakes and his representative, Mr. Walter Foscett, who have made the Palm Beach Winter Club an attractive addition to Palm Beach's many beautiful social and sports backgrounds. At the helm of the golf shop is one of America's best knows pros, Mr. Jimmy Easton.

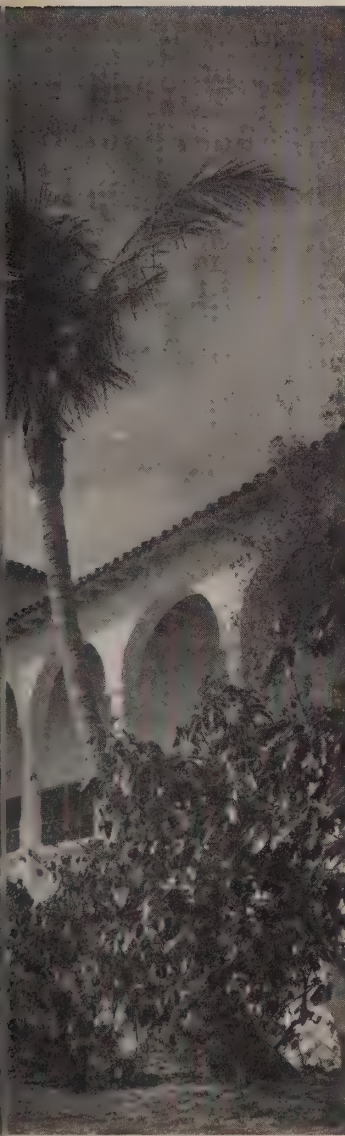

Several striking views of the exterior and interior settings of the club are seen on these pages.

Upper right shows a corner of the men's locker room, which is one of the most beautifully appointed lounges in the building. Lofty ceiling, many sunlit openings and a decor that features elegant simplicity are the salient characteristics of this inviting gathering spot for the masculine visitors to the Palm Beach Winter Club.

The colorful and interesting cocktail lounge, with its completely stocked and intriguing horse-shoe bar and spacious accommodations for many gay parties. Through the windows of this gathering spot one can glimpse a tropical panorama of rare beauty. The walls are in beautiful natural woods and the furniture in light attractive colors.

One of the many attractive features of the Palm Beach Winter Club is its accessibility, lying between the famous Seminole Golf Course and the little town of Lake Park, just a short drive from Palm Beach. Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis bought the Welsh property, their first thought was of a garden. To this end they asked their architect, John L. Volk, to lay out a scheme for planting and to remodel the old house. Buildings were torn down, the old garage moved to another location and a superb vista was opened from the house to the east end of the property 550 feet away. Here the view is closed by a trellised slat-house for palms which stands before a high screen of Cunningham and Australian Pines. On either side of the slat-house and enclosing the cutting gardens are glass houses for the propagation of orchids, of which Mr. Davis has a rare collection.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis were so delighted with the result they decided that rather than alter the old house they would build a new one in keeping with the work already done. Accordingly Mr. Volk prepared plans and the accompanying pictures show the result. The plan of the house is unusual in that it has cross halls as so many old houses in Virginia do.

The entrance hall runs north and south and has a floor of black and white marble; at right angles to it and extending through the house is the principal hall 16 feet wide. By placing the stairs in this hall privacy is assured, and a sense of spaciousness is given by the wide openings toward Lake Worth on one hand and to the garden on the other.

The library, on the left as one enters, is a walnut panelled room lightened by printed linen with a design of Chinese birds and flowers. This room is particularly Mr. Davis' where he may work without interruption.

The living room, on the right, is 24 feet by 36 feet with a high ceiling and wood work reminiscent of Williamsburg. In fact the doors are exact copies of doors in the ballroom of the Governor's Palace. The panelled chimney-breast and carved mantel are noteworthy and a great bay admits light and a splendid view of the lake. This room is predominately blue and white, the colors being taken from the chintz at the windows. Furniture covered with modern textured fabrics stands on a rug of soft French blue. The dining room, on the third corner of the house, is conceived and furnished in the manner of 1750 when the vogue for Chinese decoration was at its height in England. Hand-painted Chinese paper—trees, birds, and flowers against a sky of cerulean blue—stretches from dado to cornice; mantel and overdoors are carved in the spirit of the time. Chippendale chairs with quilted seats are grouped around a table centered by a handsome old epergne.

An unusual feature is a flower room where Mrs. Davis spends many hours arranging the roses which are her especial pride.

Stretching between the flower room and the library is a spacious loggia overlooking the garden; on the lake front of the house is a paved terrace, and opening off the dining room is a patio for al fresco meals.

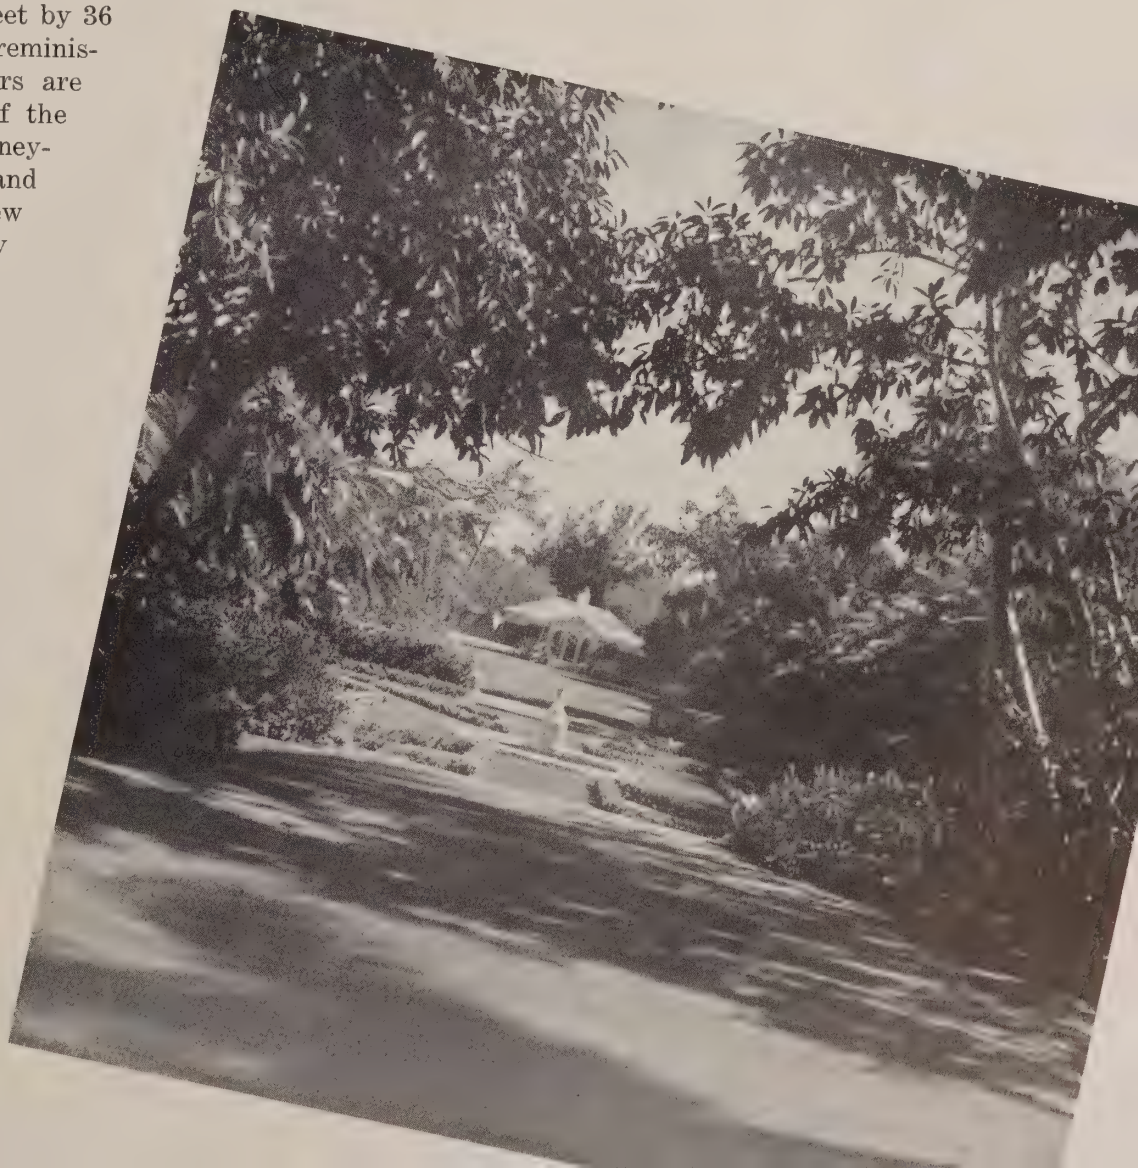

Upstairs are Mr. and Mrs. Davis' quarters and three guest rooms with baths. The owners' room is unusually large and has a fireplace. Mrs. Davis' bath has been worked out in a veined marble used around the tub and for the top of the lavatory which is set in a mirrored niche. Mr. Davis has a separate bath with a unique arrangement of closets.

This estate is a charming home largely because of the exceptional interest taken in it by both Mr. and Mrs. Davis at all stages of its development. Small wonder it is an accurate reflection of their tastes and personalities.

Classic perfection expressed in its Georgian simplicity is shown in this view of the Charles S. Davis residence as seen from the lake-front, its whiteness in delightful contrast to the beautiful foliage and varied types of trees surrounding it.

Tall coconut palms with their feathery fronds frame the entrance to the Davis residence, with a glimpse of the fountain and formal garden in the foreground, offering one of the most delightful combination of architectural and landscaping perfection to be seen in the resort.

A charming setting of superb landscaping greets the eye from the verandah of the Charles S. Davis residence, with tall Australian and Cunningham pines forming the background for the conservatory and the slightly elevated lawn in front giving the impression of depth greater than the actual distance from the house and the formal gardens in the fore-front.

Visual evidence that Hialeah's claim to the title of America's Most Beautiful Race Track is not unwarranted is found in this striking picture of Hialeah's bougainvillea-covered grandstand in a setting of flowery beauty, fringed with stately Royal Palms.

Hialeah Race Track Attracts Cosmopolites

ONE of the salient characteristics of beautiful Hialeah Park race track is found in the brilliant cross-section of the nation's contemporary life that are represented in its distinctive list of boxholders and members. A glimpse at its distinctive roster discloses the names of statesmen from the nation's capitols, tycoons from the fabulous motion picture studios of Hollywood, world renowned journalists, artists, writers, a representative group of the international set in Palm Beach and leaders in every phase of the country's diverse activities.

Headed by Mr. Joseph E. Widener, dean of the American Turf as Chairman of the Board at Hialeah, the list of boxholders and members include a sparkling group of contemporary leaders.

The clubhouse with its beautiful loggia right off the main entrance, daily draws the nation's elite. Two covered terraces adorn the upper portion which is for members of the fashionable Hialeah Club. The terraces overlook the beautiful Hialeah infield where the famed flock of flamingoes promenades daily over the greensward of the turf course. The island-dotted waters of the infield lake further enhance the beauties of the stately course.

Mrs. P. A. B. Widener, in the absence of her husband, who has been ill in Philadelphia, presides over the social gatherings in her Hialeah club box, with Joseph E. Widener, chairman of the board.

From the nation's capitol at Washington come Postmaster General James T. Farley; Mr. Stephen Early, one of the President's braintrusts and Senator John J. Dunning. Other prominent national figures include, Mr. James M. Cox, former United States Vice Presidential Candidate; Mr. Bernard Baruch, Mr. Herbert Bayard Swope, journalist, financier, international diplomat and socialite; Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and Mrs. Hague; Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, Col. W. A. Jones of Washington, D. C., and other well known figures in the Nation's Capital.

Florida's Governor Fred P. Cone, former Governor Dave Sholtz, and former Governor Doyle E. Carlton, and other important leaders in the life of the state are found on the membership and boxholder's list.

Palm Beach's international set contributes many of its most popular members, among them, Mr. Charles A. Munn, Mr. Stephen Sanford, well known polo star, and Mrs. Sanford; Palm Beach's beloved Colonel Edward R. Bradley, internationally known polo stars, Winston Guest, Mike Phipps, Stewart Iglehart; well known socialite sportsman George Edward Kent, Jr., Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mr. John Hay Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. B. Widener, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, owner of champion horses and popular member of the Palm Beach social set; Mr. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, turf enthusiast and also an owner of many fine thoroughbreds, Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Also Mr. Henry Carnegie Phipps, former international polo star, and Mrs. Phipps; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgan Tilford, Mr. and Mrs. F. Homer Smith, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Dunn, Mr. Emil Mossbacher, and Mrs. Donald Woodward.

From the Hollywood sector comes Mr. Nicholas M. Schenck, famous motion picture producer; and other well known cinema moguls. The brilliant Damon Runyon of journalistic, column and motion picture fame; and a list of names that stand for leadership in many phases of national life. Mr. Willis Sharp Kilmer, Mr. Russell A. Firestone of rubber fame; Mr. Bernard Gimbel, department store colossus; Mr. C. H. Candler, Atlanta's well known industrialist; real estate's famous J. J. Lynch, and a host of prominent visitors from the north are found on Hialeah's distinguished list.

Hialeah's acres of beautiful landscaping; the world famous infield of the track with its lakes, flowers and vividly colored flamingoes have played host to many notables this season and has presented in turn one of the finest racing cards ever assembled in America.

Ever since its inauguration eight years ago the Hialeah Juvenile Championship has been one of the features of the program on the closing day. This year, however, this $2500 stake for two-year-olds which have won at the meeting has been made the midweek feature. Usually, the Hialeah Juvenile Championship is something more than a championship in name only for it generally brings together the winner of the Everglades Stakes which is exclusively for fillies; the winner of the Seminole Stakes which is for colts and geldings, and the fashionable Miami Jockey Club Dinner Stakes, for which both colts and fillies are eligible. A handsome piece of silver will be presented by Mr. Widener to the successful owner.

Racing on the turf has been a feature ever since Mr. Widener began refashioning Hialeah to suit his own ideals, so it is fitting that this popular type of sport should be dignified by a special event during Widener Week. This will be the Palm Beach Purse, for three-year-olds and upward, at two miles to be run on Thursdays, Feb. 29. The added Trophy will be a handsome crystal vase.

The feature on Friday, March 1, will be the Black Helen Handicap, named in honor of Colonel E. R. Bradley's great mare, winner of the Florida Derby in 1934. It will be for fillies and mares, three-year-olds and upward, at a mile and a furlong, and curved crystal cup will go to the lucky winner.

Naturally, the Widener Challenge Cup will be the chief feature of closing day on Saturday, March 2. In addition, the $50,000 in prize money, which makes it the richest race for older horses in the east, there is a handsome gold challenge cup, and it must be won twice before becoming the permanent possession of the owner. The winning owner in the meantime receives a smaller replica. Right now, with Challendon, the champion thoroughbred of 1939, a possible starter, the Widener shapes up as one of the most interesting contests in its history.

A bit of enchantment is added to the beauty of Hialeah, America's most distinctive race track. Flame colored flamingoes in the miniature lake that graces the infield, live their lives oblivious of the throng who shout encouragement to their favorite thoroughbred.

The Pine Needles

A DELIGHTFUL fillip to the close of a perfect winter in Florida, is a complete change in scenery, in sports, in climate and the tempo of living . . . if these can be obtained without inconvenience and with no sacrifice of comfort. It would be difficult to imagine a place which could more happily provide just such a change than the Pine Needles at Knollwood, Southern Pines,—and with the additional advantage of postponing for a time the return to cold spring weather in the North.

Here among the beautiful long leaf pines, you will find all the gorgeous aspects of a Carolina Spring. Acres of peach and apple blooms, great splashes of dogwood, lilacs, magnolia and a chorus of birdsong—make this a veritable paradise in which to loiter for a spell between a strenuous winter season and a return to the multiple demands at home.

Just beyond the terrace is an 18-hole putting course which provides mild exercise for those who are not athletic. It is, however, difficult enough to intrigue the most seasoned golfers and the weekly putting tournaments draw a large field.

For the strenuously inclined the Pine Needles golf course which starts at the door of the hotel, is considered one of the finest in the country. A number of improvements have been made this season, including new brick shelters, and a new rest house with a fireplace, amusing murals, a veranda, easy chairs and a snack bar. There are several additional events this year on the Pine Needles golf schedule, which opened with a Thanksgiving four-day tournament and climaxed by the Pine Needles Best Ball Championship to be held February 26 to 29, inclusive. Most spectacular event to date was the opening tournament of the recently formed Amateur-Professional Golf League, in which George T. Dunlap, Jr., former national champion and Ted Turner, professional for Pine Needles and Pine Valley, turned in a score of 65, which is the course record.

In a country famed for its miles of bridle trails, hunting and racing, it is only natural that horses should share the spotlight with golf, and while many Pine Needles guests ship down their own horses there are a number of nearby stables with mounts for every class of rider from the beginners to the most daring follower of the hounds.

In the shadow of the pines many of the bronzed golfers at Pine Needles find this putting green the ideal spot to improve their short game. This view shows the south terrace of the hotel.

Most of the equestrian events are held in the Spring, and starting with the Southern Pines Spring Horse Show, two-day event to be held at the horse show grounds of the Southern Pines Country Club this week-end, there will be a succession of thrills for the lovers of horses. In March comes the Annual Hunter Trails, which immediately precede the opening of the Southern racing season here on March 16. On that date the Sixth Annual Race Meeting of the Sandhills Steeplechase and Racing Association, will bring thousands of visitors from all over the country. The Aiken Mile Track Hunt follows the Sandhills event on March 25, and after that the Carolina Cup at Camden on March 30.

With these on the calendar, plus the weekly gymkhanas, and the polo games, which have been revived at nearby Pinehurst, participants and spectators have a program to follow with unflagging interest.

Another revival also to take place in March is the Dog Show to be held by the Sandhills Kennel Club on the 18th, at the Barber Estate Steeplechase course. While every class will be represented, it is anticipated that bird dogs and fox hounds will lead the entries since this is essentially a hunting community.

To all its visitors, in season and out, the Pine Needles offers a warmth of hospitality and dignified informality that is appreciated the world over, as distinctive and just a little more than is expected of life in a hotel. So popular has it become in the five years since it opened that considerable addition is to be started early in May.

A challenge to the golfing ability of the sun-tanned visitors to Pine Needles is found in this sylvan setting. A well trapped green over a water hazard seems to call for a high shot with plenty of backspin with a seven iron.

Old St. Augustine

THE St. Augustine Arts Club, which has almost twice as many members this year as last, is preparing to take up new quarters in the Hotel Alcazar, the colorful, Moorish-looking structure built during the Flagler era, which the city has just leased and where several town projects are to be housed.

The Arts Club will occupy what was once the popular old grill room of the hotel, fronting on the Alameda, and will hold an exhibition there toward the end of the month. Mr. Benoni Lockwood, of New York, is president of the Arts Club, and other officers and committee heads are Mr. C. Victor Rahner, Mr. Chester Herring, Mr. M. W. Brashears, Miss Constance Train, Miss Hildegard Muller-Uri, Mr. John Hare, Mrs. Henry Barclay, Mrs. J. M. T. Reid and Dr. Francis A. Waterhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer J. Fox, of Peekskill, N. Y., have arrived in St. Augustine for an extended stay. The latter, known in garden and literary circles as Helen Morgenthau Fox, addressed a St. Augustine garden club gathering held at the Llambias house this week. This function, arranged by Mrs. Francis King, nationally known gardening authority, served as inauguration of the house as a garden center and as a meeting place for the garden circles which form St. Augustine's Garden Club.

The Llambias house was deeded to the city last year by Carnegie Institution and the St. Augustine Historical Society for a demonstration in restoration and preservation. The Garden Club has agreed to act as custodian of the house and will recreate an old St. Augustine garden in the charming grounds that surround the quaint, balconied coquina dwelling.

The Llambias house, so-called because of long occupancy by the Llambias family, dates back to the first Spanish occupation of the town. The first written record of it occurs on an old map of 1763.

Miss Marjorie Flack, author of many children's stories, has arrived in St. Augustine for a long visit and has taken an apartment on Davis Shores.

The Fatio house, which, with its attractive courtyard, is such an eye-pleasing landmark on Aviles Street, has a larger number of artist tenants than usual this season.

The Fatio house now is owned by the Colonial Dames of America in Florida, and Mrs. Barret, who is fourth vice president of the organization, is doing a coat of arms for the house, which will be cast in plaster.

Another of the amateur artist group who has taken a studio in the Fatio house is Mrs. John E. Pickering, who also intends to sculpture there.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Victor Barry, new members of the winter colony this season, have taken a house on Tremerton Street. Mr. Barry, who rejoined his wife here recently, is head of the Socony Vacuum interests in the European territory, which includes Czechoslovakia and the Balkans and has his headquarters in Prague.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Simmons, of Greenwich, Conn., stopped at the Hotel Ponce de Leon on the way to Mountain Lake, Fla., where they will visit friends. Mrs. William F. Stewart has arrived from the North to visit her sisters, the Misses Amey and Anne Macmillan, who have a charming old house on St. George Street.

An enchanting vista of an old world courtyard is seen through the ivy covered arches of the Ponce de Leon Hotel, in historic St. Augustine, one of Florida's most popular and interesting hostleries.

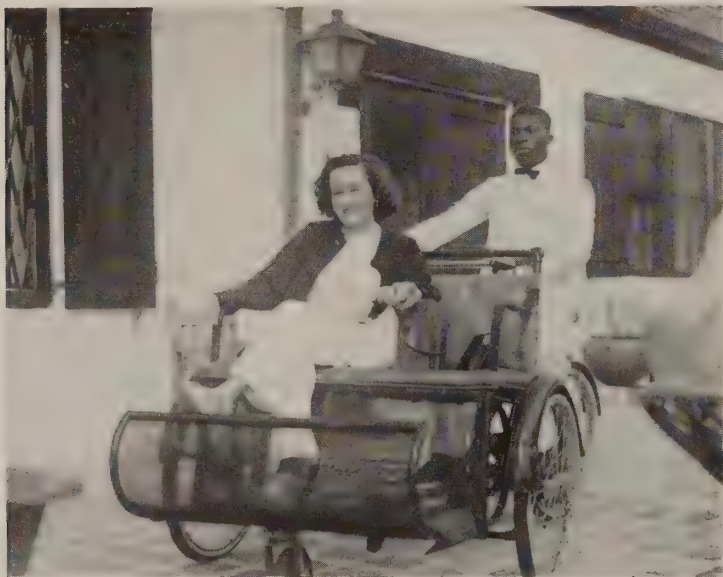

Cat Cay, Gem of the Bahamas

CAT CAY, gem of the Bahamas, with coral beaches drenched by tropical sunshine and laved by iridescent waters, is an alluring rendezvous for socialites. Luxuriant foliage and towering palms enhance the setting of many homes built here by Americans during the past few years. In addition to these homes are guest houses made of the native quarried coral, where sojourners know the lazy luxuriance of the Tropics.

The social and sports scene in this Paradise Land of Manana centers at the Cat Key Club and at the Manor, with its high vaulted dining room in the Sir Bede Clifford Hall and the Kitten Key cocktail lounge with walls decorated by autographs of celebrities, permanently preserved, and written in the colors of the rainbow. In the Old English Walled Garden dances under star-studded skies often with the added glamour of the golden moonlight of a low hung moon accent the romance of the Bahamas. . . . while the overtones of the rhythmic splash of the breaking surf provide an obligato to the dance music.

Formal dinner parties, cabana and luncheon parties, bridge and other social affairs are paralleled in this Land of Manana by various sports, including skeet shoots, soft ball baseball games, tennis tournaments, surf sports, bicycling over miles of paved paths . . . or it might be one's pleasure to be pedaled deluxe in a three-wheeled Africar by a native Bahaman, as Gloria Swanson of cinema fame was recently.

Cat Cay waters are renowned for their supply of game fish. Here fishing is excellent the year around, especially for white marlin, sailfish, wahoo, dolphin, bonita, kingfish, barracuda, tuna, mackerel, bonefish, amberjack, grouper and other tropical fish. An event attracting international sportsmen is the Second Annual Cat Cay Tuna Tournament scheduled for May 25th to June 5th inclusive. While last year's event is now history, so great a quantity of tuna was taken from Cat Cay waters, and so many world records were broken that details of that tournament furnish the basis for many a story in current magazines. Life Magazine, June 26, '39, carried two double spreads, four pages of pictures on last year's tuna tournament. So is it any wonder that sportsmen of the world await with enthusiasm the coming of this year's tuna tournament.

Pirates Harbor in this island resort, which in bygone days was the hideout of Sir Henry Morgan, Captain Kidd, Penn, the naughty brother of William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, and other sea marauders, now affords hospitable shelter for palatial yachts. Under 9 ft. draught and up to 120 ft. over-all-yachts can enter this harbor at any time. Yachts drawing over 9 ft. but under 12 ft. of the same maximum length can come in at high tide. Larger yachts can find nearby anchorage by passing through Gun Cay Cut in the lee of Gun Cay. Yachtsmen, provided they have invitations, are at liberty to come ashore and participate in the recreation and social doings at the Cat Key Club. A feature of the Cay is a recreation building, including a reading room and sleeping quarters for fish guides and crews of visiting yachts.

Of more than passing interest are the native Bahamans, who are engaged in various pursuits at the Cay. In the little white church, which has been provided for them, are held religious services. This church is their community center, where many ideas are dramatized for the later entertainment of the visitors. Smoky Joe and his troubadours frequently present a program of spirituals after the Bahaman tradition. With primitive instruments, they furnish dance music at the Manor, and a Hammond organ is also used for dance and other musical programs.

While ship to shore radios on the charter fishing cruisers keep the Islanders in touch with the outside world, a wireless station is maintained at the Cay for the convenience of the resorters.

The Cat Cay Club, with a limited membership, is unique in the whole world, as it offers for a moderate outlay the ultimate in comfortable luxury of a resort in the Tropics. Accessibility of Cat Cay is an important factor, since it is only fifty miles east of Miami, Fla. American visitors arrive at this resort by Clipper Ship from the International Airport in Miami, or by crossing the indigo waters of the Gulf Stream by private yacht or cruiser.

All the calm and tranquility of the dreamy Bahamas is exemplified in this romantic vista at Cat Cay.

And so it goes in this Tropic Playground at Cat Cay. A gay whirl of dinner and cocktail parties jots the calendar, as the high season gathers momentum in this Bahaman resort. Dominating the social scene on St. Valentine's night with traditional customs prevailing, a gala dinner in the Sir Bede Clifford Hall at the Manor, followed by a dance and entertainment under star-studded skies in the adjoining old English walled garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Perkins, Wilmington, Del., entertained recently with a cocktail party at their recently house-warmed cottage Tiamen on Princess Elizabeth Road in compliment to their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand La Mott and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woodruff, also of Wilmington. This enjoyable affair was attended by about forty of the island's socialite colony, here for extended sojourns. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins will also entertain tomorrow with a cocktail party in the Kitten Key lounge, prior to dinner in Clifford Hall, in honor of the birthday anniversary of their house guest, Mr. Ferdinand La Mott.

Mr. and Mrs. Lammot du Pont, Jr., Wilmington, who have been cruising Bahaman waters, aboard their yacht, Marmot, and who were recently anchored in the cove at Pirates Harbor, returned here for a fortnight's stay after a cruise to Nassau. Their cruise guests are, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morgan, Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Edmiston, West Chester, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown, Baltimore, and Mr. Willard Saulsbury, III, Wilmington. Mr. du Pont is a brother of Mrs. Howard Perkins, and a series of parties aboard the Marmot, and at the Perkins' cottage, Tismon, are planned for the next two weeks.

Mrs. Allan Sheldon, III, Grosse Pointe, Mich., was recently welcomed back to this island colony at a cocktail party at Blue Horizon, home of her mother, Mrs. David Manson Weir, of Steubenville, Ohio. Mrs. Sheldon will be recalled as the attractive Miss Frances Weir, and her marriage to Mr. Sheldon last season was a social event. Mr. Sheldon is expected to join her soon at Blue Horizon.

Mr. Powell Crosley, Jr., who makes frequent trips from his winter home in Sarasota, Fla., to Cat Cay in his amphibian plane, arrived this week-end at the Manor. His flight guests are, Miss Page Crosley, Miss Edith Chatterfield, Mr. Albert Chatterfield, Miss Naomi Finn and Mr. Weymouth Finn, all of Cincinnati, Miss Frances Gardner, Baltimore and Miss Elizabeth Barnum, Darien, Conn.

Honeymoon in the Bahaman Tropics is the choice of Mr. and Mrs. R. Stockton Taylor, Narberth, Pa., who have arrived here on their wedding journey.

Yachts joining the imposing fleet, now anchored in the cove in Pirates Harbor at the Cay, include the Odyssey, with Mr. Walter S. Gifford, Mr. Walter S. Gifford, Jr., and Mr. W. J. O'Connor, all of New York. This yacht arrived from Miami Beach, Fla.

Yacht Miriam is here tugging at her mooring with Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Tappan and Mr. Dale Ward, Mansfield, O., aboard.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Durand, Rochester, N. Y., now in residence in the cottage at the Cay, make frequent cruises among the Bahamas aboard their yacht Confusion II, which anchors in Pirates Harbor.

Mr. Gerald Groesbeck, New York, who is cruising local waters aboard his yacht Nimriff, recently arrived in Pirates Harbor from Nassau. His cruise guests include, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Duckworth, and Miss Christine Harris, Coral Gables, Fla.

All distances in Cuba are measured from the $80,000 diamond imbedded in the floor of this gorgeous illuminated building, that is as magnificent inside as out. Cuba's Capitol building is among the most interesting sights in this land of color and contrasts.

Ancient Buildings Add to Cuba's Charm

DOWN narrow tortuous streets, constructed centuries ago to furnish perpetual shade for the urban residents of Havana, are age old buildings crowding a narrow strip of sidewalk and transporting the visitor to another era, with their old world charm. An occasional picturesque old square, with Cathedral, College and various old civic buildings looms up as unexpectedly and delightfully as an oasis in the desert with its intriguing vista of hoary old buildings in various types of classic architecture.

Leaving the beautiful broad boulevard of cosmopolitan Havana, with its glittering prados, miles of macadamized thoroughfares that lead to gathering spots comparable to the smartest in any modern resort, one may undergo a complete metamorphosis of spirit in a pilgrimage to Havana's picturesque old section of the city.

Five minutes from anywhere is a reminder of the Havana that used to be—the Plaza de Armas, cradle of the city's earliest life, snug and secluded from the noise and excitement of the modern metropolis. Here was centered all the social political and religious life of the old city. Venerably encircling it as if to keep inviolate its centuries-old grandeur are some of Havana's most historic buildings . . . La Fuerza, the City Hall, the sacred Temple which is a sanctuary of Tuscan architecture built to commemorate the founding of Havana. Here, under a giant Ceiba tree, the first mass was celebrated and the first city council gathered in November, 1519. The legend persists that the Ceiba tree which today shades the Temple was grown from a shoot of the original tree destroyed by hurricane in 1753. But historical fact records, however, that three Ceibas were planted in 1828; only one survived to mark this now historical site.

Two blocks way is another and equally venerable shrine, the Cathedral Square, on three sides of which stand stately old buildings that are classic examples of Havana's earliest architecture. Once private palaces, they now house retreats for the shopping tourist who delights in combing native stalls for mementos of a visit to Havana.

But most commanding of these classic structures is the Cathedral consecrated to St. Christopher. Its front is of native limestone in the Spanish Baroque style. The interior basilica is formed of three naves and the choir stalls are of carved mahogany with a main altar and a tabernacle of porphyry supported by eight Corinthian columns.

Reminders of Havana's infancy remain secluded within the walls of the Santa Clara Convent once occupied by the Clarissan Nuns. But now it houses Public Works departments; in the principal patio there is rich vegetation and the original fountain, cloisters, the cells, chapel and refectory of earlier days remain as they were.

An absolute must on the list of old buildings that should be seen is the Merced Church near by, constructed in 1746 but restored and richly redecorated in recent years. Its interiors are considered the most beautiful in our western world, particularly its marble altars and chapels, as well as the collection of early paintings by old world masters that would be cherished by any private collector.

around Havana for a visit to its suburbs. From the Avenida del Puerto, Havana's palm sheltered harbor highway, you'll turn almost at once into the famous Malecon Drive that skirts Havana's gulf shore. It rivals New York's Riverside Drive or Chicago's Michigan Boulevard as a motor parkway and is marked by several parks, among them Maceo Park, a mile from the center of town and, further on, the historic Maine Monument. Anchor chains and two cannons from the ill-fated American battleship decorate the base of the memorial created by Cuba in tribute to the 266 men who died when the "Maine" was blown up the night of Feb. 15, 1898. The Maine Memorial also marks the entrance to Vedado, one of Havana's exclusive residential sections and to the nearby Havana University. Further on are Miramar and Marianao, equally exclusive residential areas around which center most of the city's social and sports activity.

The Havana Yacht Club, where the star class races are held, has a private beach for its members and La Playa, adjacent to it, has facilities for bathing.

The exquisite grace and symmetry of the famous dancing girls sculptured by Leon Gamba are a fitting introduction to the magnificent marble palace that is the Gran Casino Nacional in Havana.

Pinehurst In The Spring

SPRINGTIME is Pinehurst time, especially in the months of March and April of that season. To the traveled visitor, Pinehurst is a delightful New England village transplanted into the midst of beautiful North Carolina terrain.

Supplanting the stately elms of a New England village are the tall, straight, long leaf-pines, friendly sentinels in the moonlight. Taking the place of the rows of maples on the highways and byways are the glossy leafed magnolia trees, which form a carpet of beautiful blooms in the late spring and fill the air with aromatic loveliness.

Pinehurst, the Midsouth resort, nestling in a bracing and beautiful atmosphere of long-leaf pines and dog-wood blossoms in the heart of North Carolina, has a full calendar of sports and social events, briskly moving at a continued tempo of day and night activities during the months of March and April.

Golf is the prime factor, with three golf courses, the first tees of which are centered at the Pinehurst Country Club, the stage of numerous tournaments for both men and women. There are the varied equestrian events on the sports card, including polo matches three times a week, climaxed each week by the Sunday afternoon games, equestrian gymkhanas held at regular intervals in the riding ring of the Carolina Hotel; fox-hunting, drag hunts, a steeplechase racing meet the middle of March and the training of harness horses, hunters and jumpers at the Pinehurst race-track and at the several private riding stables in the vicinity.

For the past two years, Pinehurst has held the recognized distinction of being the largest winter training camp of trotters and pacers in the world, the harness horse contingent in training here being near the 150 mark. No wonder it's a continued race for the spotlight between the golfer and the equestrian in Pinehurst.

But golf and horses do not complete the sports picture in Pinehurst by any means. There are six superior tennis courts at the Pinehurst Country Club, shooting at the Occupying a prominent spot on the calendar is the gay social life found at this resort. The two most popular spots are the Country Club and the Carolina Hotel, where the merry round of activity includes daily tea-dances, dinner-dances, buffet suppers, and the many other social affairs which go toward making an up-to-date resort community. The grand ballroom of The Carolina, the Pine Room and the Dunes Club, one of the smartest night clubs of the Mid-south region, are the scene of much merriment at the end of the day. The Dunes, smartly decorated and recently renovated to please the most particular night club devotee, is located two miles out of town on Midland Road, between Pinehurst and Southern Pines. Then, there is the constant social life among members of the cottage colony set and hotel guests.

Heading the gala sports calendar of the Spring period is the thirty-eighth annual United North and South open golf championship, scheduled this year, to open March 19, to continue to March 21. Competition will be 72 holes of medal play, 18 holes on the 19th, 18 on the 20th and 36 on the 21st. The sixty leading players after 36 holes will play on the 21st. The tourney draws all the "big guns" of the professional golf, and also a good representation of amateur golfers, who, through a love of the game believe in "hitching their wagon to a star" and tee off. The low amateur for 72 holes in this event will be awarded a handsome trophy.

Other North and South golf tournaments include the thirty-eighth annual North and South Invitation Championship for women, from March 25 to March 30, to run along with the fifth annual Spring tournament for women, March 26 to March 29. The North and South women's event will consist of a qualifying round and finals of 18 holes, to be played in the morning of each day's play. One division of 32 will qualify, with a gold medal being awarded for the best qualification score. There will be a trophy for winner, runner-up and winner of consolation. Players failing to qualify in the North and South event may enter the Spring tournament, using their qualifying score in the North and South. Trophies will be awarded for winner, runner-up and winner of consolation in each division of 16.

The fortieth annual North and South invitation amateur golf championship for men is scheduled to open April 1 and continue to April 6. This will consist of a qualifying round of 18 holes, one division of 32 players to qualify. Finals will be 36 holes, all other matches at 18. A gold medal will be awarded for the best qualification score with a trophy going to the winner, runner-up and winner of consolation. The twenty-ninth annual April tournament for men will be held for players failing to qualify in the North and South invitation tourney. Trophies will go to winner, runner-up and winner of consolation in each division of sixteen.

A prominent equestrian event in which over 100 horses, their owners bringing them here from all parts of the country, will be the annual Sandhills Horse Show, which is scheduled to be held at the Pinehurst Racetrack March 26 and March 27.

Tennis king around the middle of April. The 22nd annual United North and South net tournament will be held from April 8 to April 13, in divisions of men's singles, men's doubles and women's singles.

Offering a setting of scenic beauty, Pinehurst, the golfing capital of the mid-south, provides the finest courses obtainable for playing in the Spring. The Pinehurst region has three golf courses all with the attractive Pinehurst Country Club as their "tee." The Spring tournament schedule, aside from the many club events weekly, also includes the three top-flight North and South championships.

"Downhill Only" In Switzerland

IT WAS the first time I was on skis and I looked and acted the part. Even the gently rolling slopes of the "nursery hills" at Little Scheidegg were too much for me. But after Paul came, more than an hour late but in person nevertheless, and gave me a few pointers things started to go better. Paul was a ski teacher in his spare time and he was the one who had talked me into taking up the sport. The first thing he told me was how to get up after falling without getting the skis tangled with my elbows. This was a big help. He showed me how to go uphill, too, how to dig the skis edgewise into snow so you wouldn't start sliding backwards and how to make a stem-turn. After a while I made a couple of uncertain but magnificent runs from one rise in the ground to another. I began to feel pretty cocky.

"Say, this is great," I said, taking a deep breath of mountain air the Swiss are so proud of. "And easy, too."

"Oh, skiing isn't so hard," Paul answered, hiding a smile. "But we better get up to the restaurant. They'll be expecting us." We had arranged to meet some others for lunch.

I tried a few more stem-turns and they worked so beautifully that I got an idea. I resolved to make skiing history, preferably before witnesses. So I said in a matter-of-fact voice: "How about a downhill run this afternoon? We'll all go. It shouldn't be much trouble for me to get to Brandegg." Brandegg is about two kilometers downhill on the way to Grindelwald.

"Well," Paul said, not taking me too seriously, "We'll see after lunch. Perhaps you'd better take the train down. They say it's best to take it easy the first day." Of course I knew better.

When the others heard that I proposed to get down to Brandegg that afternoon, and on skis, they were more blunt about it. They said I was crazy, like all Americans. But Paul just smiled and said he guessed it was my own business if I wanted to break my neck and moreover, skiing was easy.

After lunch we stretched out in sun-chairs, talking and blinking lazily under the warm sunshine. The restaurant orchestra, consisting principally of an accordion, played one gay folk song after another. In front of us, on the skating rink, curlers shouted instructions to each other: "Sweep it!" "Let it curl!" "Use a left handle!" On the vast white slope of the Lauberhorn, rising above the Scheidegg plateau, skiers were black semi-colons zig-zagging downhill. Soon, I thought, I'd be doing that, too: skimming over the snow, whizzing gracefully down toward Brandegg.

A faint doubt shadowed my confidence when I stood, unsteady but determined, and watched the others shove off and disappear over the first slope. Paul had said it would be better if we two followed. Then he could take time to give me a few pointers—if any were needed.

"All right, go ahead," he said, his eyes twinkling.

I took a deep breath and pushed with my ski-poles. The hickory blades started moving and I leaned well forward. I had heard most beginners lean backward, which isn't good form, even though it's more comfortable to fall when you simply pretend you want to sit down. So I made sure I was leaning forward. And now the skis and I picked up speed. The wind started plucking at the lapels of my ski-jacket and the snow skidded by and all the while the skis and I went faster and faster. Suddenly we stopped. Nose forward, I plowed to a halt. After a surprised grunt I laughed.

"Everything okay?" Paul asked, in his best American English. "Oh sure." I rubbed the snow out of my eyes and stood up. Let's get going and catch the others," I said, cheerfully.

It didn't take me as long to fall the second time. The skis simply didn't seem to be able to keep up with me. The fifth or sixth time I fell one of the skis went digging for something at the bottom of a snow drift. I tugged and twisted but the snow was like concrete and I couldn't twist around to unfasten the binding. Finally Paul came back and dug me out. I realized better than ever how important it was to learn how to get up. The others had gotten tired of waiting and were far out of sight by now. I felt slightly annoyed. Things weren't going quite as I had expected. In fact, things were getting hazy and I was breathing hard.

"It's quite a way yet," he said. We've just started."

A few minutes later we came to a cliff. Paul went half way down the cliff and then stopped easily and turned, waiting for me to follow. Skiing down a cliff didn't seem to bother Paul at all.

"Come ahead," he yelled. "It isn't half as steep as it looks." I learned later that this was merely an ordinarily good slope for a fast downhill run.

I hesitated. At the bottom of the hill was one of those first aid stations they have at regular intervals on all ski runs in Switzerland. A patch of cloth with a red cross in its center was nailed to the trunk of a fir tree. But what caught my eye was the sled which was propped against the tree. I knew the sled was there to cart the mangled bodies of skiers back to civilization. Riding a sled didn't appeal to me. But I couldn't stop now.

"Stem-turn from one side to the other, the way I showed you," Paul shouted. "Just take it easy."

I took a final look at the red cross and started stem-turning down the cliff. Almost immediately the skis started walking instead of sliding, and then I was the one who was sliding, the descent was forgotten in the realization that this was by all odds the best method of skiing downhill that I had yet discovered. When I staggered up I noticed my trousers and gloves were beginning to cake with layers of assorted snow. My temper began to waver.

"Damn," I muttered. "Can't seem to stand up."

Paul was trying hard not to laugh. "We better try to catch the others before they get too far ahead," he said, seriously.

We caught up to them all right—at the Brandegg Weinstube almost an hour later. I had taken some eighty minutes to complete a run that Paul could breeze over in less than five

We entered the Stube and I sat down, puffing weakly as I ordered some hot tea. My sleeves were wet to the elbows and my pockets were lined with snow.

"Well," somebody asked, "How did you enjoy your first downhill run?"

"I didn't," I said curtly.

"Just the same, you did awfully well for your first time out. Imagine skiing two kilometers downhill the first day."

"Yes, only I didn't ski down. I slid. The skis are still as good as new."

Paul couldn't hold out any longer. He let loose a guffaw and then everybody was laughing, including myself.

"All the same," Paul said, "you'll be a skier in no time at all. You just need a little practice."

"If that's the case I'll be an expert yet," I replied. "I'm going to get to a lot of winter resorts in the next couple of months, anyhow. So I ought to be able to stand up, at least, by the time March comes along."

"Think so?" Paul said, joking.

"Positively," I said with a grin. "As a matter of fact, I'll bet you five francs that when I get back to the Oberland next March I'll be able to beat you from Little Scheidegg to this Stube. With a five-minute handicap, of course."

"It's a bet," Paul replied.

The next morning I hobbled on one of the grey cars of the Montreux-Berness-Oberland railroad and set out for Christmas morning at Silvplana, near St. Moritz, Switzerland.

French Switzerland. One of the best known resorts on this route is Gstaad, and after a couple of days there I had the stem-turn down pat.

The next place I went to was Zermatt, in the Valais. This tiny mountain village lies in a protected valley, and looming over the valley is the famed Matterhorn, a towering skyscraper of rock and snow and ice. Zermatt, like all Swiss winter resorts, has a Swiss School where visitors can get expert instruction. I made good use of my time. When I left Zermatt I was able to do a stem-christiania.

From Zermatt I went to Central Switzerland, to Engelberg, Andermatt and the Rigi. At Engelberg I scored a major ski triumph. I won a race for beginners and they gave me a Swiss Ski School badge with any number of stars on it. But more important was the fact that the stem-christies were getting better and better.

After a brief stay in that part of the country I decided I was ready for finishing school. I went to the Grisons: St. Moritz, Pontresina, Arosa, and last of all, Davos. The famous downhill runs of Parsenn were the polishing off ground for my christianias. By the end of February I thought my progress as a skier better than satisfactory. A stem-turn was something of the disdained past. And I looked like a skier, too. A couple of months in the alpine sun had taken care of that. I was tan and smug. Now I could show them.

Paul was at the station when I got back to the Bernese Oberland.

"Salut," he said. "You look like you had a fine time."

"I did. The time of my life. I guess I was at practically every winter resort in Switzerland."

"Yes?"

"Well, a good number, at any rate," I amended. "I've still got plenty of time, too, to get to the Vaudois Alps and the Oberland resorts I've missed."

We left the station and started the short walk to the hotel. "And how did the skiing come along?" Paul asked.

"Don't worry," I said. "We'll see how the skiing came along soon enough. We're going to Scheidegg tomorrow."

There's a little matter of a downhill race to Brandegg I've got to take care of."

"Wasting no time, eh?" Paul smiled broadly.

"I'll meet you at the station, skis and all, tomorrow morning at seven. The Scheidegg train leaves at seven-ten." The next day I lost five francs.

MRS. DANIEL DRAKE-SMITH
Of Rye, New York, is one of the island's resorters, who enjoys the colorful attractions of the Sea Spray Beach Club.

Cocktails at Five Dinner at Eight

PERISH the thought that Palm Beach is bound by time or space in the carefree jaunts of the smart set, but five in the afternoon does disclose a representative group of the island's socialites chatting over cocktails at the swank Alibi, colorful Newell Tilton's, and its complementary Flamingo Restaurant, as one of Florida's incomparable sunsets begins to point its gorgeous colors on the sky . . . and it is equally true that twinkling stars and the soft evening breezes furnish an accompaniment for Dinner at Eight, at the popular Chambord, the always different Pelican and the aforementioned cocktail spots, which are magically transformed into dinner dates after dark.

One of the many intriguing luncheon spots on the island is to be found in the attractive patio of the Alibi, where Miss Mary Hackett, famed Cape Cod entrepreneur of delectable cuisine, adds interest to the famous Alibi with an outstanding buffet luncheon. Many of the smart set have acquired the habit of dropping in for luncheon and staying for the fashionable cocktail hour.

The dinner hour at the Alibi features not only the outstanding cuisine, but is famous for bringing out the unconventional in entertainment. Everything from revivals of old Chaplin classics of the silent days to listening to your own voice come back to you through a marvelous recording device add interest to Dinner at Eight at the Alibi.

Among the many interesting parties noted at the Alibi was Mr. John Jacob Astor's luncheon party given in honor of Miss Marian Oates, prior to the departure of Miss Oates for her home in Nassau. Many of the island's socialites were Mr. Astor's guests at this attractive party.

Mr. and Mrs. Luis Martinez de las Rivas were luncheon hosts on the same day to Prince and Princess Alexis Obolensky, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas and Mrs. Barclay Kountze Douglas. Mrs. Graham Youngs, had in her attractive luncheon party, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Nesbitt, Mrs. Jesse Spalding, Mrs. Julian S. Myrick, Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. John Vanneck and Mrs. J. Hill Whiting.

Highlighting a recent afternoon at the Alibi, which found a gay crowd drifting in from shopping tours on Worth Avenue and activities in various sports settings on the island, was Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Reeves' party for several members of the island's resorters. Among their guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Dulany Hunter, Mr. Charles A. Munn, Mr. Charles A. Munn, Jr., Mr. Arturo Rodman de Heeren,

Miss Mary Munn and Captain Alastair Mackintosh.

Worth Avenue being the great international shopping center, it is not strange that the luncheon and cocktail hour should find a lot of the island's socialites dropping in to various of the colorful gathering spots along this famous thoroughfare. Newell Tilton's, with its intimate charm and famous cocktails and the picturesque patio of the Flamingo Restaurant join in attracting many of the smart set during the daylight hours. From the smart lounge of Tilton's to the sun-caressed patio of the Flamingo Restaurant is a pleasant step for the smart set.

Directly across the street from the beautiful Everglades Club this duo setting is a popular gathering spot of the smart set. Among the interesting parties glimpsed at Newell Tilton's was Mr. A. Atwater Kent's cocktail party for Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hoffman, Miss Laura Hope Crews, famous star of stage and screen, whose recent role of Aunt Pittypat was outstanding in "Gone With The Wind," Mr. and Mrs. Newell Tilton and Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Kountze.

Another interesting party found Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carey entertaining for a group of friends, in honor of Mrs. Carey Reed. Princess Laura Rospigliosi had as her guests, Mrs. W. Earl Dodge, Princess Camilla and Princess Francesca Rospigliosi, and Prince and Princess Alexis Obolensky. Mr. and Mrs. George C. Van Dusen had several in their interesting party. Mr. Messmore Kendall came in on the same day with a gay party of friends.

Leaving the famous shopping thoroughfare for the nonce we find that Doug Boyle's distinctive Pelican is attracting many of the gay crowd in Palm Beach, with its sang froid and remarkably different atmosphere. The smart set have learned that at the Pelican they can expect only the unconventional and the unique in entertainment.

Augmenting the sterling music and splendid harmonizing of the Four Senators at the Pelican are an astounding list of involuntary entertainers who drop in to this spot after their nightly performances in the island's pretentious gathering spots, and put on impromptu shows that would cost a fortune to duplicate on Broadway.

With one of the Pelican's famous broiled steak dinners and unsurpassed artistry in cocktails as added incentives, many of the after dark crowd drop in to this rendezvous after an evening at the fashionable Paramount Theatre and other popular places.

The "Going Away" party for Mr. Sam Harris, prior to this famous producer's trip to New York to secure additional talent for the Kiwanis Benefit Performance, was as refreshingly different as the atmosphere of the Pelican itself. One hundred and twenty-five guests were vicariously present at this colorful dinner party, sending in their autographs on one dollar bills in lieu of their inability to attend the party enmasse.

Among the guests present at Mr. Harris' party were the producer and Mrs. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Mack, Mr. and Mrs. William DeMuth, Miss Marjory Wilkins, Mrs. Lillian Hogan and Miss Ann Morales.

Other attractive parties on this night included Mr. and Mrs. William Rhinelander Stewart's dinner party for Mr. Milton Holden. Mr. Peppe D'Albrow came in with Mr. John Osterstock and Miss Helen Hayes.

A galaxy of popular socialites are seen at the smart Alibi, with the camera having captured the mirrored reflection of the beautiful blue and white motif in the murals. finds the same cosmopolitan elegance and suave background that has made this restaurant famous in New York and other metropolitan centers. Lending a new dignity and charm to Palm Beach's Royal Poinciana Way, the Chambord has been the setting for numerous attractive parties since the inception of the season.

Featuring their famous cosmopolitan background and distinctive cuisine the Chambord has contributed in a great measure to making the island's gourmets happy. Among the interesting parties glimpsed at this famous gathering spot recently was Mr. and Mrs. Guernsey Curran's dinner party for a group of friends that included Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Balsam, Mr. and Mrs. Guernsey Curran, Jr., and others. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Glasgow were guests of Mr. Blythe Branch during the luncheon hour at the Chambord. Mr. Henry I. Barbey was host to several friends at dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore and Mr. Heath Moore were in another party.

One of the intriguing features found at the Chambord this season is the distinctly original collection of wine bottles bearing labels, which are symbols of the Chambord's aristocratic cellar, which have been assembled by "Alex Hounie" and are rapidly becoming important and unique parts of the wall decorations in specially planned niches.

Adding to the interest of the Chambord's dinner and luncheon guests are the autographs of many of the important personages, who have dined there and who have placed their signatures on the bottles of rare vintages, which complement the excellent cuisine.

Mr. Stephen Kellogg was host at a small dinner at the Chambord. Mr. and Mrs. R. Royce Kent entertained in the baronial dining room. Mr. and Mrs. William Brewster gave a dinner for six. Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Kountze Douglas were hosts at dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Luis Martinez de las Rivas. Mr. and Mrs. Peavey Wells had several in their interesting party.

Mrs. Guy Witthaus had as her guests the Marquis and Marquise Molinari d'Incesa and Mr. and Mrs. Munson Treadwell. Col. and Mrs. Robert Morse entertained at a dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Maloney, Mr. and Mrs. Dodge and Mr. and Mrs. Keeler.

UNDER THE STARS

CATERING to bon-vivants the world over to the smart society of both continents, the fashionable Patio has occupied a premier position in the life of the Palm Beach winter colony for the past decade. Started by that Peer of Gourmets, George Lamaze, the Patio has built up its superlative reputation on a firm foundation with the accent still on the perfection of cuisine as prepared by that King of Food, Albert Rollet.

Peerless entertainment has also become an established policy of Dan Shalek, popular manager of The Patio and has been provided with meticulous choice by Val Ernie, Palm Beach's favorite maestro and director of entertainment at the patio.

Val's rapid rise to the front ranks of orchestral entertainment has been largely identified with the Palm Beach scene, and he is happiest when playing for his many friends on the star-studded dance floor, under the swaying palms.

Val's dynamic personality, coupled with a brilliant musical mind, has formed the nucleus for an orchestra of outstanding musicians, whose performance as a unit, places them in the front rank in the entertainment world.

One of the delightful entertainment surprises of the season was the presentation of Ted Milford, that quiet, self-effacing young man with the golden voice, whose success at the gay dinner intervals and then at the daily luncheon periods, has been instantaneous.

When this personable young tenor sings into the microphone at the Patio, the appreciative audience is actually listening to the clear tenor voice of the rightful heir to the title.

Another interesting personality whose name has been synonymous with the club life of the island for many seasons, is Capt. E. Hawley Zimmerman, who is at The Patio as in seasons past, personally supervising the well-being of its many patrons.

The Patio's entertainment policy is providing the host of winter residents with delightful diversion for themselves and their friends.

Wednesday and Saturday evening gala dinner dances have offered such outstanding stars as Harry Richman, the king of entertainers, Ruth Terry, glamorous singing star of the stage and screen, Adelaide Moffett, number one society songstress, Mara Manet, vivacious Parisian chanteuse, Tommy Goodwin, the singing golfer, and Jane Pickens, lovely and talented radio entertainer.

With the season at its height, a galaxy of other prominent personalities in the world of entertainment who appeared in the annual Kiwanis Show, made the Patio their rendezvous following this outstanding performance at the Paramount Theater, and made the occasion one to be long remembered with their impromptu offerings.

Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, internationally prominent winter visitor, has been the center of an interesting group on several occasions during her visits to The Patio. With her have been Mr. Robert Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Heminway, Mr. and Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Loder, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst.

An interesting recent party was that of Miss Grace Amory, who has been making a name for herself in tournament golf, who was present with Mr. Herbert Pulitzer, Mr. Milton Holden and Mrs. Potter Bourne.

Mr. Charles Munn was also observed with Mr. Charles Munn, Jr., Miss Mary Munn and Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr.

An interesting foursome of aviation enthusiasts included, Mr. and Mrs. John M. L. Rutherford and Mr. and Mrs. H. Seymour Shonnard.

Other notables have included, Mr. John Jacob Astor, 3d, who was host to a group consisting of Mr. Edward N. Townsend, Mrs. Mason Tucker, Miss Marian Oates.

The innovation of the famed Passy cuisine at the Colony Club, is one of the most favored conversational subjects of Palm Beach gourmets and night club habitués these days. The Colony for many years has been noted for its two beautiful restaurants and bars, one in a tropical garden of splendor, and one exquisitely decorated, in an interior steam-heated-air conditioned room. The dancing surface of both the out-door and indoor floors is well-nigh perfect. Ernie Holst's orchestra, direct from El Morroco in New York, is the best procurable, and in keeping with other great name bands who have played at the Colony in the past.

The current season brought two great changes, however, one, a brilliant nightly floor show featuring such important performers as Lois Elliman, society songstress, Frederic Vonn, noted composer-pianist; Helen Curran, another social thrush, the Herbert Taylors, Palm Beach's favorite ballroom dancers, plus one night stands of such stellar attractions as Eddie Garr, famed mimic and impersonator, The Hartmans, dance satirists, Hildegard, continental chanteuse, Jerry Blanchard, effervescent song stylist, and that inimitable impersonator Sheila Barrett. The other change being the afore-mentioned addition of the cuisine of the Passy Restaurant, of New York City, under the personal supervision of Chef Henri Verge, which means delicious food superbly prepared and perfectly served.

Among recent guests of the Colony were noticed: Mr. John Jacob Astor, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Mrs. Phil Ammidown, Mr. and Mrs. Carman Messmore, Mr. and Mrs. Nicolas Embiricos, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Heminway, the Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Holmsen, Mr. Robert Sweeney, Mr. Robert Bacon.

Others who have been present on recent Gala nights include: Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Reeves, Mr. Pierre Barbey, Jr., Mr. Sydney Smith, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. Egerton Warburton, Jr., Mrs. Wesson Seyburn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, Mr. Paul Bancroft, Mr. Herbert Pulitzer, Mr. Charles A. Munn, Miss Peggy Stevenson, Mr. Mason Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Luis Martinez de las Rivas, Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry Buhl, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Salisbury.

Observed occupying ring-side tables and on the dance floor were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ittleston, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Berkowitz, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Loening, Mr. and Mrs. Ira F. Warner, Mr. Joseph Bannon, Mr. Harry Kelton, Mrs. Chauncey Clark Woodworth, Mrs. Samuel Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Albee and others.

Palm Beach Sports Scene

SPORTS activity in Palm Beach has reached a peak this season not enjoyed for a number of years past with leading contenders from all the sports centers of the country taking part in various events. Golf has offered practically all the outstanding luminaries in the feminine ranks, while nationally known men golfers have chased the wily pellet on all three courses of the resort.

Those merry men, the Artists and Writers, just completed their annual hegira to the gold coast with a few remaining here to soak up some sun.

Then Annual Bath and Tennis Club championship tennis tourney attracted a fast field from among the club members and guests and this week on Tuesday, two of the top champions of all time, Big Bill Tilden and Don Budge, meet for the first time in this country on the fine clay courts of the Everglades Club in an exhibition match that should attract a record crowd.

Next week the Annual Everglades Club tennis tournament will get under way with top netters endeavoring to out-stroke their opponents for the club championship.

Thursday, February 29, comes only once in four years and is just made to order for the Thirtieth Annual Society Baseball game held for the benefit of the Police Pension Fund.

New Yorkers will meet Philadelphians with both teams

Mr. E. Thompson Starr, secretary of the Palm Beach Golf Club, Mr. Frank Swanson, superintendent of the course, shown with Mr. Donald Ross, world-famous golf course designer, as they made a tour of the newly-revamped course which was changed this summer under Mr. Ross' direction.

made up of well known socialites and crack ball players from the Police Department and from the ranks of winter visitors.

Society attends these affairs enmasse and has an hilarious time watching the efforts of society's best sportsmen as they wield the willow in a frantic effort to win for their side.

High goal polo matches have attracted sports enthusiasts galore to the world-famous Phipps Fields at Delray Beach to watch top-ranking mallet wielders ride the cream of horse-flesh in thrilling encounters.

Speed kings of America's best racing world, skippers of fleet sailing craft and top officials of the American Power Boat Association converged on Palm Beach for the annual Washington's Birthday regatta which saw some of the ranking race boat drivers of the world in hot competition.

The racing program included class A, B, C, and F in the outboard divisions, piloted by some of the nation's outstanding drivers, three classes in the hydroplanes including 91 cubic inch, 135 cubic inch and 225 cubic inch displacements, Class E. runabouts and a feature Gold Cup event with entries from the President's Cup regatta.

In the sailing division several boats and skippers of national reputation were entered from various sections of the country. The races included, Moth, Suicide, Cricket, Snipe and Sail Area under 200 square feet, with special events for boys and girls, run under sanction of the Florida Sailing Association.

March 7 will find one of the greatest aggregation of world-famous golf professionals ever assembled on one course to take part in the amateur-professional 18-hole medal play golf tournament, over the exclusive Seminole Club course.

Prominent amateur sportsmen from the social set will team with world-famous professionals to compete in this annual event which marks a high point in golf play on southern circuits.

The covered shoulders, the new inky colors, the muffled elegance of this fall's fashions all conspire to highlight a shining head. And to spotlight a drab one! Every single strand of hair must gleam with a life of its own ... must make your whole burnished head glow above the stained-glass colors of your new autumn outfit. Your hair daren't be drab, dispirited or flecked with gray. Your hair simply must be young-looking, whatever the calendar's decree! And it will ... with Clairol's famous 3-fold method of shampooing, reconditioning, tinting. Insist on Clairol at your hair-dresser's.

• Write now for your free copy of a comforting booklet, "Your First Gray Hair" by Joan Clair, president, Clairol, Inc., 132 West 46th Street, New York, N. Y.

CARTA BLANCA

IMPORTED BEER

Here's old Mexico's most popular brew—a pilsner-type beer, smooth and creamy, delicate of bouquet, properly aged in vats by one of the world's largest breweries. IT'S SWEEPING THE COUNTRY! The favorite of Sunny California's smart night spots and movie colonies. An overwhelming success in New York at "21," the Stork Club and El Morocco.

BODEGAS BILBAINAS, S. A.

In every civilized nation of the world, Spanish Rioja wines are regarded as true aristocrats, prized by every lover of fine beverages. The wines of Bodegas Bilbainas will still be a favorite after even the most critical comparisons.

JOSE ROMERO P. GIL

Founded 1798. A unique assortment of sherries, noted for their outstanding bouquet, aroma and brilliance. Ask for the delicate, dry "FINO BALBAINA"

FRANCISCO R. UNDURRAGA

Chile ranks among the foremost wine producing countries. Ask for Chilean white wine (Bochsbeutel), a very dry white wine of delightful flavor. Ideal as an all around luncheon and dinner wine.

★ CLEAN TASTE

Mr. Tony Weller and Sam settle an estate and have some brandy.

The appreciation of really fine things is timeless. When Dickens' Sam Weller and his Pickwick Papers companions first tickled the risibilities of appreciative booklovers, Hennessy Cognac Brandy was . . . and long had been . . . the preferred after-dinner liqueur. Discriminating moderns further enjoy the quality, bouquet and "clean" taste of Three-Star Hennessy in Hennessy-and-soda and a host of delightful mixed drinks.
